Senator Reed's first opportunity to retaliate for the bitter opposition of Charles M. Hay in the Senatorial primary campaign of 1922 came with Hay's candidacy for the Senate this year. Reed embraced that opportunity today in an address to the democracy of Missouri, written in his strongest vein of sarcasm and invective.

Turning Hay "another Tom Heflin," Reed asserted a belief that Hay's nomination would "drag the ticket to defeat in Missouri." He charged Hay with being a bolter Democratic candidate who did not suit him, and said that every appeal for a vote for Hay could be other than an appeal for a vote against G. Smith.

The campaign paper easily was one of the most startling in the history of Missouri politics. There was not a word in it in support of James A. Collet, the Reed candidate against Hay. It was just anti-Hay through and through.

Senator Hay Not Take Stump.
Hay, a speech like it, had been in the past a word in it in support of James A. Collet, the Reed candidate against Hay. It was just anti-Hay through and through.

Hay, when informed by his St. Louis office by telephone that Reed's nomination would "drag the ticket to defeat in Missouri," he said he would make no reply to Reed's statement until he had read the full text of it.

There can be no doubt that Reed's action will rudely disrupt the campaign Hay has been conducting along lines of party harmony and that the Democratic primary will run true to its usual course of a cut-and-dog fight, with shoppings and growling and fur flying.

Collet is virtually eliminated as a public factor in the senatorial race, which has become a contest of Reed's strength in Missouri. It will be Reed and Hay and not Collet and Hay from now on. Hay, it is conceded, had a long lead over Collet for the nomination. Reed is attempting by his personality and his confidence of his own strength with Missouri Democrats to wrest the nomination from Hay's grasp and that is over to the victor.

Risks Vote of Confidence.
Although Reed won the senatorial nomination in 1922 after it appeared he would be defeated over Collet, it could hardly be expected that he would risk a vote for another, especially for a practically unknown candidate like Reed. As he did for himself, however, Reed, notwithstanding that he is retiring from office and not attempting to line up the "dry" states in his candidacy for the presidency cost him many Missouri supporters, still has great strength in the State.

Reed, either through a remarkable courage or with a weakness due to his intense personal hatred of Hay, has risked the lead here today with 39 cents in his pocket. The rest of his funds he had lost gambling, he said.

Anderson disappeared a year ago. He was traced to Paris and London and back to New York. The trail ended in the basement of a North Side house, where the accused man was found asleep. He is held for Federal authorities.

Service Board Fixes Rate-Making Basis in Case Pending Five Years.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, July 10.—The valuation of all the property of the St. Louis County Water Co. for rate-making purposes, was fixed at $5,303,339 in an order issued by the State Public Service Commission late this afternoon. The valuation case had been pending before the Commission since March 8, 1923.

The valuation as of Dec. 31, 1927, includes $5,255,000 for property used in the public service, together with allowances for intangible elements of valuation, and $18,339 for nonoperating property.

Officers of the company declared in hearings before the commission that the valuation was not sought for purpose of increasing rates, but for financing purposes to break the record of improvements and extensions. However, under the law, there is nothing to prevent the company from asking for higher rates if the present rates do not yield a fair return upon the valuation fixed by the commission.

COAST GUARD VESSEL

Complaint Made to District Commander at Buffalo: Craft Failed to Heed Signal.

By the Associated Press.
BUFFALO, N. Y., July 10.—Complaint was made at the office of M. W. Haasman, district commander of the Coast Guard, yesterday that a pleasure boat flying the burgee of the Buffalo Yacht Club was fired on by a Coast Guard vessel in Lake Erie on Sunday afternoon.

On board the yacht were Frank G. Kachle, law partner of Col. William J. Donovan, Assistant Attorney-General of the United States; Clarence A. K. Pistell, vice president of Pistell, Deans & Co., Inc., investment securities; William T. Jobb Jr., vice president of Advertiser Industries, and others, including the wives of some of the party.

The shooting took place when the yacht was in American waters off Sturgeon Point. A signal boat of the Coast Guard headquarters said the shots were fired at the yacht because it failed to heave to when signaled.

Those on board the yacht say they saw no signals, and in fact did not see the Coast Guard boat until shots began to fall close enough to the boat to splash water on the deck.

Georgia Republican Chairman Pickett Denies This Was Reason L. F. Peterson Ended Life.

SAYS BOOKS SHOWED THAT HE WAS SHORT

Tells Senate Investigators He Never Received Contributions, Then Recalls One He Returned.

By the Associated Press.
ATLANTA, Ga., July 10.—Roscoe Pickett, chairman of the Georgia Republican State Central Committee, admitted at the Senate patronage inquiry today he had once received a contribution "of several hundred dollars" but declared he had returned it and had told the donor to send a check to the treasurer if he wished to contribute. The witness said the check was mailed to him by a Mr. Southern, Republican leader at Blairsville.

Previously, Pickett had told the committee that he had neither received nor solicited any funds for the State organization.

"But I understood you to say you accepted no funds," Senator Harris of Georgia reminded the witness. "I did not. I returned it to him. I explained that I handled no funds and told him if he and his friends wished to contribute, to send it to the treasurer."

Senator Locher of Ohio, member of the investigating committee, shot at the witness a query as to why he had not sent the money to the treasurer himself. "I sent it back to the donor," was the answer.

"You did not want to endorse that check, did you?" snapped Locher. "I sent it back," Pickett reiterated.

"But," pressed Locher, "you did not endorse the check because you didn't want your name on it?" "I didn't endorse it," the witness retorted. "I said I sent it back. I told him if he wished to make a voluntary contribution to send it to the treasurer."

"Why did you say voluntary contribution?" queried Locher. "That is the way they make them up in my country."

Senator George had read two letters from postmasters which stated that money was enclosed for the party organization and asked that credit and receipt be given. One letter related that $25 was enclosed "as per our understanding." Pickett said he was not familiar with the correspondence.

Pickett was questioned about the suicide of L. F. Peterson, a Democratic postmaster at Douglas, Ga., who in a note he left said he was making away with himself because of the assessments imposed on him by the Georgia Republican organization.

Admitting that he had heard complaints of collections by party officials or others, Pickett said the Peterson case was the only recent instance brought to his attention.

Peterson gave G. O. P. $115. "I made an investigation," he said. "I found that the real cause of Mr. Peterson's deed was not any payments he may have made to some one. The records show he contributed only $115 during the three years he was postmaster. I found, however, that Peterson had drawn several overdrifts and was short."

Senator Walter F. George of Georgia asked: "Is it not true that these alleged shortages occurred while he was under threat of removal?"

"Yes," replied the witness. "I have since discovered that to be true."

The summoning of a Federal grand jury at Biloxi to investigate the alleged sale of postal appointments in Mississippi will be asked of the local court there, it was announced by the sub-committee. Senator Brookhart, the committee chairman, said Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, Assistant United States Attorney-General, was on her way to Mississippi to make the request in case the regular grand jury was not in session, and expected to reach Biloxi tomorrow.

Record of payments from postal employees was contained in a card index submitted yesterday at request of the committee by John W. Martin, treasurer of the Central Committee, who denied that any assessments had been made by his office or by anyone else, so far as he knew. He said he had accepted the money as voluntary contributions.

Smallest of Craft in Race to Spain for Queen Victoria's Cup Breaks Away From Tow.

ST. LOUISAN LEADS FOR KING'S TROPHY

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, July 10.—The Rofa, smallest of four yachts that started on June 30 from Ambrose lightship for Santander, Spain, in the race for the Queen Victoria cup, has been lost at sea. Her crew, including Mrs. William Roos of Pelham Manor, N. Y., wife of the captain and owner, were picked up by the Anglo-American Oil Co. steamer Tuscarora, which docked at the Standard Oil pier in Bayonne, N. J. today.

Yacht Broke Away From Tow.
A message received by the New York Times from Roos and Capt. Hart of the Tuscarora said: "10:15 a. m. July 6, 800 miles east of New York, both masts carried away. At 5 p. m. sighted Tuscarora with intention of being towed into port. Captain of Tuscarora strongly urged, owing to storm warnings, that it was imprudent to stay on yacht and prevailed on us to come on board and have Rofa towed. Towed Rofa until 2:30 a. m., when she broke adrift and was lost."

The Rofa, 50 feet over all, sailed on the last two days before Lundborg was rescued by the Swedish ship, before had been tested under sea conditions, and sailing men thought something had gone wrong in a blow and that she had probably lost her mast rig. However, no reports of bad weather in the path of the Rofa had been received.

None of the four small boats carried radio sending sets and had to rely on steamers sighting them to report their safety. Those remaining in the race are the Pinta, Nina and Mohawk.

LARGE YACHT BECALMED.

A Wireless Message to the Associated Press From R. W. Johnson of Newark, N. J., Master and Owner of the Schooner Zodiac.

The schooner Zodiac, one of the five entries in the race for the King Alfonso cup, which had under way last Saturday, said his ship was becalmed.

"Monday noon and 4 p. m. position," read the message, "latitude 40:30 longitude 67:55. Very moderate air. We are reaching the crew to swim around the vessel."

The position given was 144 miles southeast of New York, far behind her schedule if she would reach Spain in the 12 days her skipper had hoped to make the 2055 miles passage to break the record of the Atlantic, another of the schooners entered in the race.

The three other schooners in the larger class are the Guinevere, the Elena and the Agar.

Lambert Apparent Leader.
Gerard B. Lambert of St. Louis, owner of the record-holding yacht, Atlantic, in a wireless message to the Associated Press today, reported favorable weather and a day's run of 274 nautical miles.

The message read: "Position yacht Atlantic on Spanish race at noon, our time. Latitude 39 degrees 25 minutes North. Longitude 64 degrees 25 minutes West. Elena eight miles astern. No others in sight. Fine weather. Day run, 274 nautical miles."

The position given was approximately 600 miles southeast of New York, the farthest point reported by any of the competing yachts.

The Elena is owned by William S. Bell of New York.

MARRONED MEN ILL WITH FEVER, HE SAYS

Soviet Icebreaker 25 Miles From Refugees — Likely to Reach Them if Ice Conditions Improve.

By the Associated Press.
STOCKHOLM, July 10.—The five survivors of the Italian dirigible Italia are ill with fever and most of them show signs of partial insanity, according to word received from the Swedish rescue ship, Quest, today. Little hope is held for their immediate rescue. Their morale is low.

Lieut. Einar-Paul Lundborg, who was marooned on ice near Foynne Island with them for 13 days, said his stay was terrifying. They had little food and what he got was rather unappetizing. They were reprovoked before he was rescued, however.

Lundborg said all the survivors were suffering from fever and most of them showed signs of mental aberration. Giuseppe Biagi, radio operator, was suffering from fever for the last two days before Lundborg was rescued, but nevertheless he arose at least twice daily to operate the wireless.

Since Lundborg was rescued last Friday there has been no radio contact with the marooned men, advised from the Quest said.

All Telegrams Censored.
Other details coming from Spitzbergen conflict with reports of the disaster sent out by Gen. Umberto Nobile. All telegrams from the base ship CITTA di Milano, where Nobile is, are being censored. Nobody is allowed to telegraph in any language except Italian and all telegrams to Rome are controlled by Nobile himself.

It was learned, however, that Nobile now says the radio was all right from the first minute after the dirigible crashed on May 25. Nobody can explain how the CITTA di Milano and other stations were unable to pick it up until June 9, when the base ship first announced that it had established communication with the survivors.

Stories of Disaster Confict.
Nobile's statement about the unexpected fall of the dirigible and that the crew was not prepared, appeared to conflict with fact that there were 500 pounds of provisions in the navigating cabin for six persons. This was held to indicate that measures had been taken for a forced landing, otherwise the dirigible would have been kept in the dirigible's interior.

Dr. Finn Malmgren and the two men who started with Nobile afoot for land had 50 pounds of stores when they started May 30. They had no weapons and it was thought that they all perished.

Hope for rescue of the marooned men appeared today to lie in the Russian ice breaker Krassin. This vessel found progress through the ice field slow and today was 25 nautical miles away from the marooned men. Eventually, says Capt. Tornberg, head of the Swedish rescue mission, if ice conditions improve, the ship can reach the refugees.

Rescue by Air Doubtful.
Prospect of rescue by air is thought to be twofold. The Swedish leader recommended that the large Swedish Junkers plane be sent home.

A landing on the ice with a small sport plane is possible only when the temperature is below freezing. The temperature is below freezing by great risks. At present the temperature, because of the cloudiness, is above the freezing point. Fog cut short a flight which the soviet airman Chukhovskiy made from the Krassin in an attempt to reach the survivors.

Soviet Icebreaker 25 Miles From Refugees — Likely to Reach Them if Ice Conditions Improve.

By the Associated Press.
STOCKHOLM, July 10.—The five survivors of the Italian dirigible Italia are ill with fever and most of them show signs of partial insanity, according to word received from the Swedish rescue ship, Quest, today. Little hope is held for their immediate rescue. Their morale is low.

Lieut. Einar-Paul Lundborg, who was marooned on ice near Foynne Island with them for 13 days, said his stay was terrifying. They had little food and what he got was rather unappetizing. They were reprovoked before he was rescued, however.

Lundborg said all the survivors were suffering from fever and most of them showed signs of mental aberration. Giuseppe Biagi, radio operator, was suffering from fever for the last two days before Lundborg was rescued, but nevertheless he arose at least twice daily to operate the wireless.

Since Lundborg was rescued last Friday there has been no radio contact with the marooned men, advised from the Quest said.

All Telegrams Censored.
Other details coming from Spitzbergen conflict with reports of the disaster sent out by Gen. Umberto Nobile. All telegrams from the base ship CITTA di Milano, where Nobile is, are being censored. Nobody is allowed to telegraph in any language except Italian and all telegrams to Rome are controlled by Nobile himself.

It was learned, however, that Nobile now says the radio was all right from the first minute after the dirigible crashed on May 25. Nobody can explain how the CITTA di Milano and other stations were unable to pick it up until June 9, when the base ship first announced that it had established communication with the survivors.

Stories of Disaster Confict.
Nobile's statement about the unexpected fall of the dirigible and that the crew was not prepared, appeared to conflict with fact that there were 500 pounds of provisions in the navigating cabin for six persons. This was held to indicate that measures had been taken for a forced landing, otherwise the dirigible would have been kept in the dirigible's interior.

Dr. Finn Malmgren and the two men who started with Nobile afoot for land had 50 pounds of stores when they started May 30. They had no weapons and it was thought that they all perished.

SMITH PLEDGES IMMEDIATE FARM RELIEF ACTION

Telegraphs Indiana Farm Bureau He Will Begin Work on Problem Without Delay, if Elected.

STANDS SQUARELY ON PARTY'S PLANK

Plans to Call Conference of Leaders to Develop Concrete Plan to Submit to Congress.

By the Associated Press.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 10.—Gov. Smith has promised that if elected President he will begin at once to formulate a legislative program for farm relief.

He gave this pledge in a message to William H. Settle, president of the Indiana Farm Bureau Federation, who inquired in a telegram as to his position on the agricultural plank in the Democratic platform.

"As to agriculture," Smith telegraphed to Settle, "I stand squarely on the pledges given by the Democratic party at Houston. I understand and sympathize with the objects which organized agriculture is struggling to attain and which our party has promised to help them secure."

"If the election returns disclose that I have been chosen President, I will not wait until I am inaugurated before acting on this problem. I will immediately after the election, call a conference of leaders to commence at once and continue work to assist me to develop a concrete plan embodying the principles of the Houston platform so that I may transmit to Congress at its opening session a definite program accompanied by suggestions for the necessary legislation to make it effective."

The telegram from Settle, which brought forth the Governor's reply, follows: "The executive committee of the Indiana Farm Bureau Federation, of which I am president, will meet in Indianapolis next Tuesday (July 10). Will you wire me at once your personal position on the agricultural plank in the Houston platform and state the procedure you will follow if you are elected President. The farmers are looking for assurance of relief from the economic servitude in which they have been held for seven years."

Same Query Sent to Hoover Remains Unanswered.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 10.—Herbert Hoover's failure to reply to the telegram sent by the Indiana Farm Bureau asking his personal stand on the farm relief question will be taken to mean that he is going to stand on the platform adopted at Kansas City, according to word given out at the meeting of directors of the Farm Federation today. William H. Settle, president of the Federation, said that Hoover evidently intended to ignore the telegram and his failure to reply direct will be taken as such.

Replying to the telegram from Gov. Smith of New York, Settle said that Smith's "encouraging message" will be placed before the directors today.

Telegrams were sent to both Smith and Herbert Hoover, Republican presidential nominee, asking for their personal stand on the question of farm relief, in order that the farm bureau could consider the positions of the two candidates.

Farm Leaders Plan to Challenge Republican Platform.
DES MOINES, Ia., July 10.—Farm leaders representing the Corn Belt Committee, including numerous farm organizations of the Middle West, are planning to challenge the Kansas City platform and the regular Republican organization of the State, which is preparing to support Herbert Hoover for President.

A meeting of farm representatives from 11 states, scheduled to be held here, has been postponed to July 16. This was done to bring the meeting together just two days before the Iowa Republican convention and to determine whether it will repudiate the Kansas City platform on farm relief or repudiate its representatives in Congress who have been fighting for the principle of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, including Congressmen Haugen and Dickinson.

Illness of William Hirth of Missouri, president of the Corn Belt Committee, is the official reason for the sudden postponement.

National Committeeman, also declared he did not know personally of any levies or collections, but said he had heard complaints from four or five localities that varying sums had been paid over to local party officers by applicants for postal positions. He declared that the only money he had received was that donated by regular party members at the time of the State convention.

Martin said all contributions received by him were disbursed to the expenses of the committee and on orders of the committee. He estimated monthly expenses of the organization, including salaries and office rent, averaged about $1200.

Both Davis and Martin related to the committee the salary disbursements of the treasury. Martin said salaries once totaled $1050 monthly but had been reduced somewhat. Davis, as secretary of the Central Committee, was paid $250 monthly; Martin himself $250, and the same sum to Roscoe Pickett, chairman of the committee. Other salaries of $75 and $50 were paid to assistants, Martin said.

He said that at one time the vice chairman also received a salary of $250 monthly.

"Do you mean to tell this committee that all this money is voluntary—it just all comes in?" inquired Locher.

"Yes, as far as I know," Martin answered.

Declaring at the outset that the investigation had not been intended for the purpose of punishing anyone, Senator Harris said there was every reason to believe that post-office jobs had been given in this State for financial consideration.

He said he only hoped that the result of the inquiry might clean up "deplorable conditions" and prevent their recurrence.

WALKER WARNS MOVIES TO KEEP OUT OF POLITICS

In Hollywood Speech He Hints at Reprisals If Producers Ignore Admonition and "Guess Wrong."

By the Associated Press.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 10.—Addressing the publicity men of the motion picture industry, Mayor Walker of New York last night declared that he had been informed that the industry "had been entered into the camp of one of the major political parties."

"The New York Mayor said that if the industry allowed its neutrality to be violated in the 1934 presidential campaign, it must expect the consequences of such partisanship if it guesses wrong."

He mentioned no names in his address. Several prominent motion picture men are Republicans. They include Louis B. Mayer, who attended the Kansas City convention as a delegate; Joseph Schenck, a producer, who is a member of the Republican State Central Committee; and Will H. Hays, head of the motion picture producers and distributors and former chairman of the Republican National Committee.

Mayor Walker informed his hearers that although he had "put on the status" books of New York a law making Sunday movies possible, he never had asked any favors from the industry on that account, despite the fact that it was clear that the welfare of the industry's box office was involved.

"And if you know anything about aviation," he said, "you know that no matter how high you fly you must come down to earth to eat."

"So long as the organized motion picture industry sticks to its function of entertainment it has a right to expect the co-operation of public officials, regardless of their political affiliations, in the development of the industry's legitimate business."

"But if it departs from its own field to enter the field of partisan politics, it must accept the conditions of the competition. It is wrong. It must expect to be crushed."

The visiting Mayor said he preferred to believe that the individuals who make up the motion picture industry "are not enmeshed in that they can be handed over," and that two or three men prominent in the industry were not strong enough to swing the influence of the screen in one direction or the other, politically.

Mayor Walker said his remarks had been inspired by "a small group who participated in the Republican National Convention at Kansas City."

"It seems to be," he said, "that they would realize how silly it is for the motion picture industry to dabble in politics. These motion picture producers must remember that Sunday closing laws in many cities are in the hands of opposition politicians and the pursuit of a partisan policy would be ruinous to the industry."

Asked why Mattingley was unarmed and without a guard, Cannady said:

"We have never considered it advisable for Mattingley to be armed or accompanied by a guard. For his own safety, we thought it best to send him in an unpretentious manner."

"Anyway, it does not seem to do any good to be armed or guarded; robbers will usually shoot in such cases."

Cannady cited the case of Elmer Baltz, Madison Bank cashier, who was shot to death in a holdup several months ago by robbers who also shot his armed guard. The guard recovered, Baltz was a nephew of A. W. Baltz, vice president of the East St. Louis bank.

Globe Girdlers' Plane 'Tossed Like Eggshell' in Ural Storm

Mears and Collyer Gain 300 Miles on Schedule But Lose Three Hours Through Change in Time.

NOVOSIBIRSK, Russia, July 10.—This city is known as the Chicago of Soviet Russia.

Buildings are going up so fast that the city changes its appearance yearly. Several times, whole six-story structures have collapsed because the concrete was not sufficiently settled.

A 13-course Russian banquet with many toasts, which Pilot Charles Collyer was compelled to miss because of illness, were not conducive to a sound rest last night.

As I left the hotel, a brilliant

Siberian moon shone down, squinting sternly as though disapproving the audacious gesture of two mere humans trying to break its 28-day record around the world.

The effects of the heavy banquet were additionally disconcerting when our plane, "The City of New York," ran into a violent windstorm crossing the Ural Mountains. The ship was tossed about like an eggshell, falling into pockets so deep that it barely missed the mountain peaks.

We gained 300 miles on our schedule Sunday, although we lost three hours due to our change in time.

Collyer still is suffering greatly from tonsillitis, which is becoming more serious, but he is carrying on with a fine courage that makes it an honor to be his associate on this adventure.

Although nearly choking with swollen tonsils Collyer manipulated the plane through a series of storms with great skill. It looks now as though we will break the record.

ALDERMEN TO ACT ON I. T. S. GRANT FRIDAY

Mayor Calls Board in Special Session to Pass Upon 50-Year Franchise.

Mayor Miller has called the Board of Aldermen from summer vacation to a special session next Friday to consider granting the Illinois Terminal System a 50-year franchise. Fifteen members of the Board, in caucus yesterday, indicated they would vote for passage.

The bill as prepared for passage permits the terminal company to cross Cass avenue at grade and to haul freight over that crossing. In peak hours a street car passes along Cass avenue every 45 seconds. A traffic count has shown 4500 vehicles during a business day. North St. Louis business has centered its attack on the franchise on the point that no new grade crossings ever should be created.

President Kinsey of the Board of Public Service has indicated a possible way in which the grade crossing could be eliminated, and City Counselor Muench has given the Aldermen an amendment designed to strengthen the city's power to order the elimination.

However, Kinsey has declined to say that his plan is practical and not too costly, and Muench admits that his amendment can be overthrown at any time by the Public Service Commission.

Stege is at City Hospital, and is expected to recover.

Funeral services for Mrs. Lilliech will be held Thursday afternoon from an undertaking establishment at Virginia avenue and Kingshighway Park to Friedens Cemetery.

CLARK AV. VIADUCT AGREEMENT REACHED

Terminal Undertakes to Pay $150,000 Toward Construction of the Bridge.

Mayor Miller announced today that Henry Miller, president of the Terminal Association, has agreed that the Terminal shall pay $150,000 toward construction of the Clark avenue viaduct, to connect that thoroughfare over the Union Station tracks, from Eighteenth to Twentieth streets.

The City Counselor's office will draw up an agreement binding the Terminal to this action, granting to the Terminal, on the condition, permits to lay tracks on Twentieth street, west of the station property. This is part of the Terminal's program for improvements, to cost more than $1,000,000, in the station tracks and buildings.

In place of the street section thus vacated, which is across Market street, the Terminal will provide the city with a new road for Twentieth street, south of Market, on an extension of the present line of Twentieth street.

This will make a continuous viaduct with the present jog eliminated. The Terminal Association obtained a permit for the $150,000 express terminal building, which is a part of the station improvement program. It is to stand at 1712 Clark avenue, and is to be a one-four-story wing, 70 by 60 feet, with 34 rooms in all. The Dwight P. Robinson Co. has architectural charge.

Construction of a Clark avenue viaduct at the partial expense of the Terminal Association, was required in the original ordinance for building of Union Station, which was completed in 1924.

Matter has been argued intensely since. It is now part of plan for a western relief through fare, to cut through the Handley Park property and connect with Forest Park avenue (former boulevard). The total cost of the viaduct is figured at $600,000.

The removal of Twentieth street will increase the cost of the viaduct somewhat, and the Terminal is expected to pay this extra cost in addition to its $150,000 contribution.

HOW REAL ESTATE MAN LOST $10,000 TO MORAN GANG

Arrest of Tony Serpa Brings Forth Account of Swindling of Frank Sebastian 18 Months Ago.

CHANCE FOR $19,000
CLEANUP HELD OUT

Member of Group Held in Chicago Identified as One of Hotel Robbers Who Got $6300.

With the arrest yesterday at Chicago of Tony Serpa, bond jumper and member of the notorious "chapple" Moran gang of confidence men, it became known that Frank Sebastian, St. Louis real estate dealer and former semi-professional baseball player, had been swindled of $10,000 by the gang in a fake stock deal more than 18 months ago.

Sebastian, who lives at 5210 South Grand boulevard and has an office at 3607 Hartford street, reported to postoffice inspectors Jan. 29, 1932, that he had lost $10,000 to the gang of confidence men who are said by Federal agents to have obtained between $125,000 and $150,000 in the vicinity of St. Louis in fake stock deals during 1925-26-27.

Sebastian identified Serpa as one of the five men who separated him from his money, but since the swindlers did not use the mails or otherwise contravene Federal law, the Federal authorities had no jurisdiction in the matter. Serpa, however, is under indictment in Federal Court for another swindle and is likely to go to trial next fall with Moran, whose trial has been twice postponed in the hope Serpa might be taken.

How Approach Was Made.

The Sebastian swindle, in its method of approach and its general smoothness, clearly bore the hallmark of the Moran swindlers. Jan. 11, 1932, a man entered Sebastian's office and said he was interested in buying property at 3615-7 South Grand boulevard for a wealthy client in Decatur, Ill.

Sebastian wanted $10,000 earnest money. Could the Decatur "millionaire" meet it? Probably. The swindler invited Sebastian to Decatur to find out. Sebastian went.

He "millionaire," who dealt through still another agent, was willing to pay the earnest money, Sebastian was told. A check for $10,000, ostensibly, was shown the real estate man.

Meanwhile, one of the "millionaire's" agents let Sebastian talk on the telephone to a man who had mining stock to sell. He wanted $10,000 for the lot. After Sebastian talked to him he was introduced to another man who said he would be willing to pay $29,000 for the same stock.

Chance to Make $19,000.

It looked like ready money, a $19,000 profit on a $10,000 investment. Sebastian told inspectors that he, will meet him at the hotel, got $10,000 in cash and bought the stock. Then one of the swindlers told him he knew where a sister of the stockholder, in Edwardsville, had more stock of the same kind.

"If you can swing it you'd better slip down there and buy the rest before she finds out how valuable it is," he advised. "Then you can meet the broker at the Mayfair Hotel in St. Louis and sell the stuff to him. It will be a big killing."

At Edwardsville Sebastian was unable to find anyone by the name given to him. He hurried on to St. Louis to meet the man who had said he would buy $29,000 to spend for the mining stock.

It was a long wait. The man never came. The stock proved worthless.

Illinois Mayor Lost $25,000.
On a swindle of similar stripe, Mayor William G. Frank of Oakville, Ill., banker and hotel owner lost $25,000 in Liberty bonds. It was a "buy low and sell high" proposition, in which the swindlers led Frank after making his acquaintance by posing as real estate buyers. When Frank traded his bonds for stock, however, he was unable to find the man who had said he would buy at a high price. In the end, however, the swindlers made the mistake of leaving the mails, and a Federal indictment was the result.

In the Frank case Serpa was under $10,000 bond. He was under $10,000 bond in Springfield, Ill., on another mail fraud case growing out of a swindle and under a $3500 State bond in Illinois, all of which were forfeited when he failed to appear for trial. The new bond figures in the Federal cases aggregated $19,000.

Identified as Hotel Robber.

Serpa was arrested on suspicion by Chicago policemen yesterday and held for investigation when a pistol was found in his automobile. It was announced today he had been identified by three persons as $1000

This will make a continuous street with the present jog eliminated.

The Terminal Association today obtained a permit for the $450,000 express terminal building which is a part of the station improvement program. It is to stand at 1700, Park street, and is to have one four-story wing 220 by 60 feet, and one two-story wing, 70 by 70 feet, with 54 rooms in all. The Dwight J. How Approach Was Made. The Sebastian swindle, in its method of approach and its general smoothness, clearly bore the hallmark of the Moran swindlers. In 1927, a man entered Sebastian's office and said he was interested in buying property at 3117-9 Grand boulevard for a wealthy client in Decatur, Ill.

Sebastian wanted $10,000 earnest money. Could the Decatur "millionaire" meet it? Probably. The swindler invited Sebastian to Decatur to find out. Sebastian went. "Millionaire," who doubt through still another agent, was willing to pay the earnest money, Sebastian was told. A check for $10,000, ostensibly, was shown the real estate agent.

Meanwhile, one of the "millionaire" agents let Sebastian talk on the telephone to a man who had mining stock to sell. He wanted $10,000 for the lot. After Sebastian talked to him, he was introduced to another man who said he would be willing to pay $25,000 for the same stock.

HOW REAL ESTATE MAN LOST $10,000 TO MORAN GANG

Frank Sebastian, Swindler, Brings Forth Account of Swindling of Frank Sebastian 18 Months Ago.

CHANCE FOR $19,000 CLEANUP HELD OUT. Member of Group Held in Chicago Identified as One of Hotel Robbers Who Got $6300.

With the arrest yesterday at Chicago of Tony Serpa, bond jumper and member of the notorious "Chaplin" Moran gang of confidence men, it became known that Frank Sebastian, St. Louis real estate dealer and former professional baseball player, had been swindled of $10,000 by the gang in a fake stock deal more than 18 months ago.

Sebastian, who lives at 6210 South Grand boulevard and has an office at 3607 Hartford street, reported to postoffice inspectors Jan. 11, 1927, that he had lost $10,000 to the gang of confidence men who have obtained between $125,000 and $150,000 in the vicinity of St. Louis in fake stock deals during 1925-26-27.

Sebastian identified Serpa as one of the five men who separated him from his money, but since the swindlers did not use the mails or otherwise contravene Federal law, local authorities had no jurisdiction in the matter. Serpa, however, is under indictment in Federal Court for another swindle and is likely to go to trial next fall with Moran, whose trial has been postponed in the hope Serpa might be taken.

Chance to Make $19,000. It looked like ready money, a $10,000 profit on a $10,000 investment. Sebastian told inspectors that he hurried back to St. Louis, got $10,000 in cash and bought the stock. Then one of the swindlers told him he knew where a sister of the stockholder, in Edwardsville, had more stock of the same kind.

"If you can swing it you'd better slip down and buy the stock before she finds out how valuable it is," he advised. "Then you can meet the broker at the Mayfair Hotel in St. Louis and sell the stock to him. It will be a big killing."

Commanders Mess With Citizen Soldiers

COL. MOOR N. FALLS, commandant of Jefferson Barracks, and Col. Grant M. Miles, reserve officer, jointly in charge of the Citizens' Military Training Camp, at mess with some of "the boys" after a busy military morning.

Citizen Soldiers Begin Squad Drill at Barracks; 1300 Enrolled at Camp

Illinois Leads in Number of Students, While St. Louis Sends Few—Athletic Contests in Afternoon.

Thirteen hundred citizen soldiers, most of them boys under 20, snapped out of regulation army tents on the parade ground at Jefferson Barracks at 5:45 a. m. today, dozed their sleepy eyes in tin basins and were ready for a month of brisk military training in the fifth citizens' military training camp to be held at that post.

There were the usual awkward squads of farmboys, high school students, office men and soda clerks from communities of Illinois, Arkansas and Missouri, playing soldier for the first time, but fully half the unit had seen previous service in summer camps and were ready to play corporal or sergeant to their inexperienced brethren.

The enrollment yesterday moved with clockwork precision. Tents had been set up and equipped, and as the youths poured into camp, some in overalls and some in their Sunday best, they were hustled through the process of registration, medical examination and outfitting. Usually, after two hours of following the "white line," the student issued from the last building, fully uniformed and equipped, ready to seek out his tent and wait for something to happen.

The big rush was over by 2 o'clock when more than 1200 students had been "processed" into camp. A few stragglers came during the afternoon and a few more were expected today, bringing the number up to the full quota of 1400.

Although St. Louis is in the Jefferson Barracks area, only a handful of students came from this city. Illinois, with more than 800 student soldiers, led the list; Arkansas was second with about 300, and Missouri was third with about 200. A few came from Nebraska, Iowa and Kansas, while one young man journeyed from Southern Michigan to take his training here.

300 Walk to Camp. Perhaps one-third of the students came by rail. Many came by automobile and perhaps 300 coasted in on foot, carrying their gear on their backs, saving for spending money all of the Government's allowance of five cents a mile.

LAST OF 33D INFANTRY OF CIVIL WAR BURIED

William K. Waters, Who Marched With Sherman to Sea, Succumbed at 85.

Taps sounded today for the Thirty-third Infantry, a regiment of St. Louisans who marched with Sherman to the sea, when William K. Waters, 85 years old, 4351 Neosho street, was buried in Bellefontaine Cemetery. He was the last man of his regiment.

Waters died Saturday night of the infirmities of age in Alexian Brothers Hospital. He was born in St. Louis and ran a general store on Franklin avenue 40 years ago. A military escort from Jefferson Barracks accompanied the body to the cemetery. Mr. Waters was a member of Gen. Nathaniel Lyon Post, G. A. R. Two daughters, Mrs. Charles Telf, with whom he lived, and Miss Nellie Waters, survive.

MISSING BOY'S BODY FOUND IN ABANDONED MINE POND

Discovery Ends Search for 11-Year-Old Don Barrett Donald of East St. Louis. The mystery surrounding the disappearance Sunday of 11-year-old Don Barrett Donald from his home at 314 Market street, East St. Louis, was solved yesterday afternoon when his body was found in an abandoned mine pond at Centerville Station, a suburb of East St. Louis.

His parents had had the pond dragged after learning that a boy had been seen wading in it Sunday afternoon.

HEAT VICTIM FOUND TO HAVE AUTOMATIC PISTOL AND $409

A man thought to be Thomas Whitehead, about 50 years old, of Esther, Mo., was taken to city hospital today, suffering from heat prostration. He collapsed when walking in the 900 block of Hickory street. Letters and a key tag furnished the identification.

Eyes Injured by Heat And Glare of Sun, Say Doctors

Recommend Simple Home Treatment, Which Instantly Relieves Irritation and Often Strengthens Eyes 50% in One Week. Eye weakness, strain, squinting and irritation caused by exposure to heat, sun-glare, smoke, dust or wind—all can now be easily prevented or overcome. For eye ailments have perfected a simple but amazingly effective treatment, which instantly relieves irritation, sharpens vision and often makes glasses unnecessary.

This treatment is known as the Bon-Opto system, and is now being prescribed by physicians and specialists everywhere. It is based on the latest scientific discoveries. Scientists have recently found that 80% of all eye trouble is due to weakness in certain little muscles which adjust the eye. Eyeglasses alone will not strengthen these muscles. But the Bon-Opto treatment goes direct to them, heats and tones them, and soon restores them and therefore the eyes—to their old-time strength and vigor.

JUDGE DECLINES TO CERTIFY DEATH OF LOEWENSTEIN

Another Belgian Jurist Refuses to Permit Filing of Missing Financier's Will for Probate.

By the Associated Press. BRUSSELS, July 10.—Judge De La Rumiere, who presided at an investigation into the disappearance of Capt. Alfred Loewenstein, Belgian banker and multi-millionaire, thinks that accidental death seems the most logical explanation of the mystery.

He refused to issue a death certificate, however, since the mystery developed in an English plane in French territorial waters and the Belgian authorities were without jurisdiction. All those in the plane at the time when they contend Loewenstein accidentally fell to his death testified at the hearing, which was held because the Loewenstein family desired a death certificate.

The president of the District Court in Brussels refused administration of the financier's will until death was legally established. The family is anxious to avoid a British investigation owing to uncertainty as to what it might lead to—even a suicide hypothesis.

There has been no confirmation of an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Dunkirk which said a fisherman saw a parachute descend about the time the Loewenstein plane was crossing the channel.

JUDGE OF PARIS DIVORCE COURT IS IMPEACHED

Another Belgian Jurist Refuses to Permit Filing of Missing Financier's Will for Probate.

By the Associated Press. PARIS, July 10.—The investigation into the traffic in American divorces in Paris led yesterday to the impeachment of Judge Grenet, who presides over the court in which nearly all American divorces have been pronounced in recent years.

The extremely rare measure of impeachment was decided upon by Minister of Justice Barthou after consultation with the public prosecutor. Judge Grenet will appear before the high council of the magistrature, consisting of all the judges sitting in the Court of Cassations.

The technical charge will be "lack of clear sightedness." The prosecution will contend he should have known irregularities rendered possible in his court. This is the first time in many years a French judge has been impeached.

Special Cable to the New York World and Post-Dispatch.

Others Also to Face Charges. Seven attorneys, three process servers, and Judge Grenet's clerk or registrar, will also be brought before the disciplinary court charged with irregularities in facilitating American divorces. The prosecution intends to ask penalties ranging from disbarment and dismissal to suspension. The difficulty of proving actual corruption will prevent criminal proceedings.

There is no question but that the divorces obtained in Judge Grenet's court are valid. On the surface the proceedings were entirely regular and French lawyers agree it would take a hard fight to upset any of the divorces. The divorce ring appears to have been composed of French divorce officials, some French attorneys, and certain American lawyers. The Americans cannot be disciplined here.

System Favored Americans.

The ring slipped Americans through the mill with amazing speed, a few weeks or a month or two, while French petitioners waited for years. Silence and secrecy was also provided for the American suits. One irregularity charged against process servers is that they habitually neglected to verify the Paris domicile given by the divorce seekers or their lawyers.

One coincidence brought out by the investigation was that when Judge Grenet presided over the Second section of the Third tribunal, most American divorce cases came before him, but when he was transferred to the First section, the American divorces followed. Last year 142 of the 157 Americans to obtain Paris divorces got them from Judge Grenet.

La Presse says intermediaries approached likely American clients and offered to get divorces quickly and easily for $5000 to $12,000.

65,889 Names Added, 61,343 Struck Off, Leaving Increase on Lists 1546.

Registration of city voters for the primary election Aug. 7 totals 267,540, an increase of 1546 over the last registration two years ago. Revision of the voting lists has been completed at the office of the Board of Election Commissioners following the recent one-day registration for the primary.

Complete new voting lists will be made up for the presidential election after a four-day registration period in September. More than 300,000 voters are expected to register then.

In the latest revision 65,889 names were added and 61,343 were struck off. The Twenty-fourth Ward, with a registration of 17,209, the largest in the city, also had the largest gain, 1938 voters. Most of the wards lost in registration.

COLLET FAVORS ABOLITION OF PROHIBITION BUREAU

In Marshall Speech He Cites Heavy Cost of Enforcing the Eighteenth Amendment.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. MARSHALL, Mo., July 10.—James A. Collet, candidate for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate, here last night took a position in favor of abolishing the Federal Prohibition Enforcement Bureau, and demanded to know of his opponent his position on the question.

Collet asserted that the cost of maintenance of the bureau has been more than one and one-half times the cost of the salaries of the President, Vice President, the members of the cabinet, the Supreme Court and all Senators and Congressmen.

"For that we received virtually nothing but graft, bribery and public disgrace," he said. "All the law enforcement we have had has come from local authorities."

This being an agricultural county, Collet discussed the farm question, taking a position for the McNary-Haugen bill and denouncing Secretary Hoover.

Wife Didn't Dare Him to Jump Overboard, It Was Done in a Spirit of Jest, He Said

He arrived in the ship's hospital. He left by the crew gangplank and was whisked from the pier, refusing to see reporters. Miss Ekengren was returning from a finishing school at Lucerne, Switzerland. She said she was responsible for Hoyt's act and denied that he had tried to commit suicide.

GIRL SAYS MAN LEAPED FROM LINER ON A DARE

Denies Morton Hoyt, Rescued in Fog, Attempted Suicide at Sea.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, July 10.—A dare uttered in jest by 17-year-old Elsie Ekengren of Washington caused Morton Hoyt, 29 years old, of Washington to jump overboard from the French liner Rochambeau when the ship was off the Grand Banks last Friday evening. Miss Ekengren said today upon the arrival of the liner. Hoyt is a son of the late Henry M. Hoyt, United States Solicitor-General in Taft's administration.

Hoyt was rescued in a dense fog. He arrived in the ship's hospital. He left by the crew gangplank and was whisked from the pier, refusing to see reporters. Miss Ekengren was returning from a finishing school at Lucerne, Switzerland. She said she was responsible for Hoyt's act and denied that he had tried to commit suicide.

"I didn't seriously dare him to jump overboard, it was done in a spirit of jest," she said, "and I never dreamed he would take me seriously and do it. I was astonished when he did. I feel very badly about it, but it was a very brave thing to jump into the fog like that."

Capt. Leon Rollin, commander of the liner, said that the Rochambeau was in a dense fog that restricted visibility to 50 meters when he heard the cry of "man overboard."

The liner turned in a complete circle, while a lifeboat was lowered and made ready for instant launching. Hoyt, swimming feebly and crying for help, was dimly discerned finally and the small boat "put out. Hoyt was picked up semi-conscious and was placed in bed in the infirmary. At first he refused to talk and said he wanted to sleep. Later, through an interpreter, he told the ship's officer, they said, that he regretted he had jumped overboard."

The officers and several passengers agreed that just before the cry of "man overboard" Hoyt and the girl had left the dining table to go on deck.

MERGER OF THREE MINOR POLITICAL PARTIES IS LIKELY

Prohibition, Farmer-Labor and Jefferson-Lincoln Groups Open Conventions in Chicago.

DRY KEYNOTER RAKES DEMOCRATS, G. O. P.

Dr. Leigh D. Colvin Says Neither Can Completely Enforce Law Because They Are Divided.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, July 10.—Key note speakers at the Prohibition and Farmer-Labor conventions here today proclaimed a need for a new party. Dr. Leigh Colvin of New York, chairman of the Prohibition party's National Committee, declared a new party was needed, "because neither the Democratic nor the Republican party can completely enforce prohibition because each is part wet and part dry."

Laura Hughes Lundy of Chicago, opening the Farmer-Labor meeting, also declared a need for party realignments because of what she termed "the domination of the privileged few."

The parties will name candidates for the presidency and vice presidency tomorrow. Although he attacked both major parties for their attitude on prohibition Colvin devoted most of his speech to a castigation of Tammany Hall. He called upon the whole country to "rise up and prevent the election of a Tammany wet." He predicted that the election this year will "turn chiefly upon the question whether national prohibition as implanted in the Constitution will remain, or whether it shall be eliminated by the Al Smith policy."

Three-Party Merger Likely.
The Jefferson-Lincoln League also convened here and there was a pronounced sentiment that the three parties would merge their strength behind a single presidential candidate. The most likely name mentioned as satisfactory to all three was that of United States Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska.

Representatives of the three parties last night discussed the feasibility of uniting under one banner in the fall elections. The idea that each party maintain its autonomy, however, prevailed, though the groups indicated willingness to unite on the prohibition issues, as well as upon national candidates.

Dr. Colvin said three courses were open to the prohibitionists. The party might refrain from nominating any candidate, he said, thus enabling its adherents to vote for the Republican nominee, Herbert Hoover; it might decide to nominate an outstanding prohibitionist, possibly Charles W. Randall, former Congressman from California, or Daniel E. Foley of the same state; or, it might select a Southern candidate, with a view to drawing Democratic votes from below the Mason-Dixon line.

Meeting in conference yesterday committeemen of the National Labor party, and the Northwest Farmers' Conference agreed to merge their plans and policies so that this year they may have a united front for the first time in a national campaign.

Jefferson-Lincoln League.
The Jefferson-Lincoln League, headed by J. A. Edgerton of Washington, D. C., has practically agreed to merge with the Prohibition party, Edgerton said, adding it was likely that the league would not attempt to form a third party if the Prohibition party failed to name a presidential candidate.

J. E. Hammond of Des Moines, Ia., a former prohibition enforcement chief, was one of the group that favored the defeat of Herbert Hoover. He said Hoover had several anti-prohibition political managers in his campaign organization. Hammond also urged the election of a Southern Democrat to draw Democratic votes from Smith. "The prohibition forces have been led into a trap," Hammond said. "They cannot extricate themselves except by supporting a third party ticket. Hoover and his managers realize they have the dry vote and will endeavor to corral as many wet Republican votes as they possibly can."

BRITISH BUILDING LINER BIGGER THAN LEVIATHAN

Germans Erecting Two That Will Be Faster Than the Mauretania.

Special Cable to Post-Dispatch and New York World.

(Copyright, 1928, by the Post and Pulitzer Publishing Co., the New York World and Post-Dispatch.)
LONDON, July 9.—The European shipping dispute which began here a few days ago when the White Star Line laid the keel plates of a new liner which is to be the largest vessel afloat, will be intensified by the launching of the North German Lloyd Liner Bremen.

President Von Hindenburg will officiate at the launching, which will be followed by that of a sister ship of the Bremen, the Europa. Both of them will be larger than the Aquitania and slightly smaller than the Olympic. They are much smaller than the Leviathan or the Majestic.

But speed, not size, is supposed to be a feature of these German ships. They are designed for an average of 25 1/2 knots, faster than the Mauretania and are intended to restore German maritime prestige. Both liners are expected to be ready for service in the spring.

The White Star liner, although the specifications call for 60,000 tons with a length of 1000 feet and a beam of 100 feet, is likely to be considerably larger than that. The correspondent learns that the liner is expected to displace 70,000 tons, more than 10,000 tons larger than the Leviathan.

It is understood the White Star officials decided to abandon the idea of driving the new liner by internal combustion engines and will stick to steam instead. The cost of the new vessel is estimated at $25,000,000, but this may be exceeded before she is completed.

ROBERT MINOR GOES TO JAIL

RATHER THAN PAY FINE

Several Others Incur Similar Penalty as Result of Demonstration at J. P. Morgan's Office.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Four men and four women chose to go to jail yesterday rather than pay fines for their part in the demonstration last Tuesday afternoon in front of the office of J. P. Morgan & Co. at Broad and Wall streets.

One of them was Robert Minor, candidate of the Workers (Communist) Party for the United States Senate. He shook off two court attendants who started to lead him away after a fine of $25 or five days' imprisonment had been imposed.

"This is an unfair trial," he shouted to Magistrate Tuttle, "All you are doing is serving your master, J. P. Morgan."

The attendants finally forced him, still shouting, into a detention pen. Minor had insisted on being permitted to make a statement, but the Magistrate refused, saying Minor's counsel had spoken for him.

Three elected to spend five days in jail rather than pay $25 fines. They were Henrietta Silverman, secretary of the American Anti-Imperialistic League, under whose auspices the demonstration was held; Robert Wolf, a writer, and Rebecca Grecht, a milliner. The four others chose to serve two days in jail rather than pay fines of $10 each.

Charges against two were dismissed and the cases of five others were continued.

BILLIE DOVE, First National

ANNOUNCE GIRLS' MOST POTENT CHARM

Movie Directors say Public adores Smooth Skin

HOLLYWOOD, CALIF.—The movie world is agreed on at least one subject—the greatest single charm an actress can have is smooth skin. For as Richard Wallace, First National director, says, "A screen star's skin passes the most merciless test—the Kling light find out the slightest flaw in spite of the most adroit make-up."

They have a name in Hollywood for this fine, youthful skin which can so successfully defy the blazing lights. "Studio Skin" they call it, and give it tenderest care.

Nine out of ten screen stars are using Lux Toilet Soap. It gives that invaluable smoothness. This new soap is made by the celebrated method the French perfected and use in the manufacture of their costliest soaps. Billie Dove, First National star, says, "I find Lux Toilet Soap deliciously pure and refreshing." All the big studios in Hollywood, following their stars' example, have placed it in their dressing rooms as the official soap. Lux Toilet Soap is made by Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

TWO MEN HOLD UP LOAN OFFICE AT 520 NORTH GRAND

Three Employees of Popular Finance Corporation Locked in Washroom—$415 Taken From Safe.

While heavy evening traffic was passing in front of the office of the Popular Finance Corporation at 520 North Grand boulevard, on the Washington boulevard Y one block north of Olive street, at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, two men held up three employees in the office and stole $415 from the safe, which was open when they entered. They locked the employees in a washroom before they fled.

Two men in a Buick automobile with stolen license plates held up six filling stations between 9:55 and 11:15 o'clock last night. The stations, their attendants and the amounts taken are: 2602 South Kingshighway boulevard, James Koonce, 26; Tower Grove and Melrose avenues, Ashburn Neighbors, 10; Union boulevard and Theodosia avenue, William C. Glickert, 14; Page boulevard and Hodiamont avenue, Andreas Andrea, 73; Academy and Easton avenues, Alphonse Mueller, 35; 4496 West Florissant avenue, Walter Surber, 12.

Other Holdups Reported. A Negro held up Glenn Geers in a filling station at 2601 North Jefferson avenue at 5:10 o'clock and stole $7.

Edward Brown, bartender in a saloon at 2001 Morgan street, was held up at 10:40 p. m., he reported, by a man who took $120 from the place.

While they were waiting for a street car at Ninth and Morgan streets at 10 o'clock Manuel Gordon, 3511 North Eleventh street, was robbed of $25, and his wife was robbed of a ring valued by her at $300, by two Negroes who drove from the scene in a battered silver. Robert McGinnis, 16-year-old messenger for Kinsley & Kovsky, jewelers, with a shop in the Victoria building, was robbed of a purse containing a $39 watch and a fountain pen by a man who came up behind him and snatched his satchel at Ninth and Morgan streets.

Woman Routs Assailant. Mrs. Josephine McMahon, 4402 Athlone avenue, routed a man who tried unsuccessfully to attack her as she drove her automobile into a garage in rear of 4404 Athlone avenue at 10:30 p. m.

Several shots were fired by 35-20's in an automobile chase after two men with police records, whom they encountered at Channing avenue and Olive street at 2:30 a. m. today and finally ran to the curb at Twenty-third street. Nothing of an incriminating nature was found in the automobile in which the two men were riding. Policeman last night guarded a new building at 3648-50 Grand boulevard at the request of the contractor, Jacob Haberman, 4015 Shreve avenue, who reported he had heard a rumor that the structure was to be bombed because of labor troubles.

Two men held him up at the point of a revolver, took valuable papers from his pocket, apparently thinking they had money, and fled in an automobile in Belleview Park, 5600 South Broadway. Fred Grutzmacher, 272 Plaza drive, reported to police early today. Grutzmacher said he was sitting in his own car when the men approached. Police searched the park this morning and found the papers, which were returned.

The records of Stenographers' Local Union No. 19 and $110 in cash were stolen by two men who held up Walter Kamafab, secretary of the union last night, in his yard at 4511 Oldenburg avenue, St. Louis County.

Kamafab was returning from a union meeting at Bricklayers' Hall, 4020 Page boulevard. After parking his automobile, he started toward his home when two men appeared. One held a shotgun and the other a revolver. They took the union's books and money from his pockets and ran away.

"Boys will be boys"—happy boys—only when they're healthy boys. And who wouldn't be both happy and healthy after breakfasts of Heinz Rice Flakes—the crispy, crunchy, new cereal food with a flavor like toasty nutmeats?

Those are breakfasts that start folks off right.... And that keep them "right".

For, by a special Heinz process, Heinz Rice Flakes are naturally "laxated" by the use of the natural roughage of the rice itself. This process was developed by Heinz. It is owned exclusively by Heinz. In no other cereal food can you get the precise laxative qualities of Heinz Rice Flakes. So gentle. So natural. Grown-ups as well as youngsters like Heinz Rice Flakes for they add to the "Joy of Living" and the fun of good health.

PADDOCK CLEARED OF CHARGES OF PROFESSIONALISM BY A. A. U.

ACTION RESULTS IN RESIGNATION OF G. WIGHTMAN, VICE-PRESIDENT

By the Associated Press.
BOSTON, July 10.—George W. Wightman of this city, today telegraphed to Maj.-Gen. Douglas MacArthur, head of the American Olympic committee, his resignation as vice president and member of the committee, with the request that it take effect at once.

In the telegram he severely criticized the committee for permitting Charles Paddock to accompany the Olympic team to Amsterdam.

"I cannot conscientiously retain membership on any committee," Wightman wired Gen. MacArthur, "which on technical or other like grounds permits an athlete to represent the United States when he is notoriously under suspicion as an amateur and who therefore may be the cause of destroying the fundamental purpose for which the Olympic games are held."

He defined this purpose as "to promote friendly international relations through competitions between amateur athletes of the nations entered." He referred to the report that of the Southern California Association to withdraw its contingent if Paddock were not selected as "a kind of horse trading tactics which should not impress us who are charged with an important duty to our country in a matter concerning friendly international relations."

Exonerated by the registration committee of the Amateur Athletic Union of professionalism, he will sail for Amsterdam with the rest of the American team on the SS. Roosevelt tomorrow noon.

Paddock's vindication came after he had conferred with Daniel Ferris, secretary treasurer of the A. A. U., and Robert S. Weaver, president of the Southern Pacific Association of the A. A. U., explaining in detail just how his motion picture tour was arranged. The sprinter reiterated that he had received remuneration neither for his work in the film itself nor for his personal appearance in theaters showing it. He supported this assertion with affidavits signed by Franklin M. Baldwin, theatrical producer, and Nicholas Schenck, an exhibitor of the film.

GIRL BASEBALL STAR FEATURES LEGION GAMES

By the Associated Press.
TERRE HAUTE, Ind., July 10.—Margaret Gissolo, 15-year-old prima donna of the diamond, will be the main attraction in the district finals of the American Legion's State junior baseball contest here.

Margaret, a quiet, mild-mannered lassie, has become somewhat of a stormy petrel of the Legion's baseball tournaments because of the protests growing out of the presence of a girl on a boy's ball club.

Murmurs of disapproval developed into a storm of objection recently when Margaret rapped out an inning game and enable her team, the Blanford Cubs, to eliminate Clinton, Ind., in the county tournament. It was the second game decided by Miss Gissolo's big bat.

The protest was carried all the way to National Legion headquarters. Meanwhile the State Legion athletic director had suspended Margaret but telegraphic communication with Dan Sowers, national director, resulted in a quick reinstatement.

This permitted Margaret to take her regular post at second base and help the Blanford nine win the Miller County championship and qualify for the district tournament here.

In this game she proved her value as a fielder by halting an enemy rally with a diamond-studded double play. Margaret grabbed a fly back of second and then doubled up a runner trying to advance on what had appeared to be a safe hit.

Cards Must Be Beaten.

The Cardinals are the club to beat for the pennant. Every game recently has shown their speed, their punch and their pitching. The marvelous improvement in Douthitt with the bat and the smooth work of the pitchers have done the trick for them.

The big thing for the National League in the last two weeks has been the showing of the Robins. That club's constant danger and will tighten up the late summer

Collapse of Pitchers Is Responsible for Failure Of Pirates, Says McGraw

By John J. McGraw, Manager New York Giants.
(Copyright, 1928.)
NEW YORK, July 10.—It is not difficult to see why the champion Pirates crumbled up and why they face a rather hopeless task for the remainder of this season. With everything in their favor, the best they could do now, in my opinion, would be to fight their way into the lower part of the first division.

The Pirates record of 1928 confirms my theory that pitching is 75 per cent of a ball club.

At this time last year—the half-way mark—Kremer and Meadows had won about 20 games between them. Up to July 4 this season Kremer had won but three and Meadows none.

The difference of 30 games explains the position of the champions and makes it pretty clear that the finish will be—John McGraw.

Grove has the natural ability but has not yet developed those little touches of polish that go with a real pitching artist. The necessity of these little touches ought to explain to the fans why so many phenomenal minor league pitchers with a tremendous amount of stuff

WOMAN'S PLANE IN AIR TOUR WRECKED

Mrs. Phoebe Omie, Pilot, and Passenger Are Uninjured in Accident.

By the Associated Press.
EL PASO, Tex., July 10.—Badly shaken up, but uninjured, Mrs. Phoebe F. Omie, the only woman pilot in the national reliability air tour, and her passenger, Mrs. Eddo Stinson, wife of the noted pilot, arrived here last night after their tiny monoplane had been wrecked in landing at Marfa, Tex., yesterday afternoon.

"It was all my fault," Mrs. Omie said. "I just turned too sharply after landing, and tipped my plane over. Don't say anything else—just that."

Undaunted by their experience, the women will take off for Tucson, Ariz., today, with others of the tour in a plane similar to the one wrecked. It was turned over to them by Jack Atkinson, its pilot. The women came into El Paso as passengers on the big tri-motored Ford plane that is a member of the tour.

All the 23 other planes in the tour made the 600-mile flight from San Antonio without incident. A stop was made at Marfa, 170 miles southeast of El Paso, for refueling. First to reach El Paso was Louis Meister, driving a Buick sedan. He arrived at 3:26 p. m., having negotiated the flight from Marfa in 1 hour and 21 minutes.

NEWSPAPERS CALLED BEST MEDIUM FOR ADVERTISING

DETROIT, July 10.—Advertising men of the world, drawn to Detroit for the annual convention of the International Advertising Association, heard newspapers termed the best medium they can use.

William H. Rankin, president of the William H. Rankin Advertising Agency, who was addressing the newspaper group of the convention yesterday. About 5000 delegates are attending the convention, which will end Thursday. In the last five years, said Rankin, newspapers have met all sorts of competition, such as radio and other new forms of advertising, and have come through to prove themselves the leading national as well as local advertising medium.

Charles C. Younggreen of Milwaukee, was nominated this afternoon as president of the International Advertising Association. He was named by a convention committee after Francis H. Sisson, New York banker, had declined to accept the nomination. The election will take place tomorrow.

JEANNE EAGELS' EYE BLACKED
BY TED COY, WITNESS SAYS

Hotel Man Tells Judge at Divorce
Hearing Actress Said Husband Hit Her

CHICAGO, July 10.—The plea of Jeanne Eagels, stage actress, for a divorce was concluded in Superior Court today with the testimony of a witness concerning a black eye given to Miss Eagels by her husband.

Ernest Byfield, president of the hotel Sherman, was the witness. Telling the Court that he was a friend of long standing of the actress, Byfield described an incident of Oct. 4, 1927, which Miss Eagels had testified was the cause of the final separation from her husband. She came to the hotel that day with her eye badly discolored, the witness said.

"She said she had quarreled with Ted on the train and that he had struck her," Byfield declared. Only Byfield, Attorney Orville J. Taylor for Miss Eagels and counsel for Edward Harris (Ted) Coy, the husband, former Yale football star, were present at the final hearing. Miss Eagels gave her testimony a week ago before departing on a western vaudeville tour.

Although he did not indicate his decision, Judge Joseph Sabath ordered the evidence submitted and a decree drafted.

ROBINSON URGES CAMPAIGN BUREAU FOR THE SOUTH

Vice Presidential Nominee Advocates That Democrats Meet Opposition Decisively and Promptly.

"NEW CONDITIONS DEMAND ACTION"

Declares Enthusiasm of Party in New York, "Manifest to Everyone" Is Tribute to Gov. Smith.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Establishment of a Democratic campaign bureau in some Southern state to offset "an organized effort in several states to defeat the national Democratic ticket" was advocated by Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas in a statement today.

The statement of the Democratic candidate for the Vice Presidency follows:

"The subjects of concern to me and other Democrats just how are for consideration and decision by the National Committee in its meeting tomorrow.

"The selection of a national chairman and the conclusion as to what organizations are required, and how and where they shall be set up are of very great importance. Too much stress cannot be laid on the value of an organization that shall extend its activities to every part of the country.

New Conditions in South.

"I would like to have the committee give attention to the proposal to establish a bureau or headquarters at some central point in one of the Southern states for the direction of the campaign in the South. Conditions in that section are very different from those which have prevailed in other national campaigns.

"An organized effort is in progress in several Southern States to defeat the National Democratic ticket. And, while the force and volume of the movement is not yet known, I am of the opinion that sound policies should prompt our party managers to meet this opposition decisively and promptly.

"The best manner in which to defeat the opposition in the South is, of course, largely for determination by the National Committee and it might be that some effective manner other than that here suggested will be devised. I wish to give emphasis to the advisability of meeting the conditions referred to aggressively.

Silent on Campaign Issues.

"Respecting the custom that has prevailed for many years, I prefer not to enter upon a discussion of political issues, except in a very general way until the formal notification ceremonies which it is expected will take place sometime next month.

"The energy and enthusiasm of the Democrats of New York, which must be manifest to everyone, is a tribute to Gov. Smith, whose personal magnetism and genuine interest in the welfare of the masses makes him the outstanding personality in the politics of our time."

ROCHESTER, England, July 10.—Lady Heath, noted woman flyer, accompanied by Miss Cecile O'Brien, today created what is said to be a new altitude record for a light metal seaplane. Their sealed barograph showed that the machine reached a height of 13,400 feet.

Text of Reed's Statement To the Democracy of Missouri

SENATOR REED today issued an address to the Democracy of Missouri, denunciatory of Charles M.
Hay, Democratic nominee for the seat vacated by Reed's retirement. Captioned "To the Democrats of Missouri," it follows:

It is necessary for me to so East this evening for consultation with Governor Smith and party leaders. It is therefore impossible at this time to communicate personally with many loyal Democrats whom I had hoped to see. Accordingly I am taking this means of submitting for the consideration of the Democrats of the State certain propositions which I think ought to receive serious thought. For nearly 18 years I have had the honor to represent Missouri in the United States Senate. A sense of gratitude and responsibility impels me to direct attention to what I regard as a grave party crisis in this State. I have never undertaken to dictate a party nomination, and am not seeking to do so now. I think, however, I am under the duty of appealing to the Democrats of the State to take such action as will result in victory in November.
We are interested alike in the election of the entire Democratic ticket, State and National.

Hay's Name Spells Defeat.
Mr. Hay recently made an apparently wise and prudent move about himself as though he had always subordinated his views and governed his actions by the party mandate. That is strange language to come from a man who six years ago organized this same element which he now claims to control, not for the purpose of supporting the Democratic nominee for the Senate, but for the purpose of defeating himself. He claimed at that time that many Republicans had voted for me and hence that he was absolved from allegiance to the ticket, utterly disregarding the fact that where one Republican may have voted for me in the primaries a hundred Democrats had likewise voted for me. But I wonder now (if Mr. Hay should be nominated) if he will not desire the votes of all the Republicans he can secure, and I wonder just how any man who has been so offensive in his language and conduct toward Republicans can hope to secure their votes either for himself or the ticket.

So far as I recollect this gentleman's political history, he has either sulked in his tent or openly bolted every time his crowd did not win in the primaries. I am wondering, if he is defeated in the present primary, whether he will do what I am now doing—support his victorious antagonist? I recall the campaign 18 years ago. I will not say that Hay did nothing, but if he did anything he did so little in that campaign that it has escaped my recollection.

"Another Tom Hefflin."
I recall the campaign of 12 years ago, and if he did anything in that campaign it was of such small moment that I do not recall it. But I distinctly recall the campaign of six years ago when, in the pre-primary contest, Mr. Hay, well knowing that I might be nominated (as afterwards was) indulged on the public platform of St. Louis in language so indecent that it would have be-fouled the lips of the denizen of the gutter. I recall that he helped organize a mob among the very people who, he now claims, will bolt again if they do not nominate him. I do not believe he was able to take many people out of the party six years ago, and I think that he will bring fewer people into the party on this occasion. I am opposed to surrendering the Democratic party of the State of Missouri to the Anti-Saloon League and the Ku Klux Klan.

The extremists of either of these organizations will not vote for Smith, but will be found either openly or secretly knifing him at the polls, and when the knif-ing begins on Smith it will be extended down the ticket. Possibly the point will be deflected from the precious body of Mr.
Hay, should he be the nominee. I am opposed to sending to the United States Senate, from the State of Missouri, another Tom Hefflin.

Wilson's Vetted Volstead Act.
I suppose Mr. Hay will reply to this and say he fought me because I was not in harmony with Woodrow Wilson and he will endeavor to wrap himself in the shroud of the dead and parade as the defender of his memory. That is the kind of demagogic business Mr. Hay indulges in. I call attention to the fact that upon the only question which he declares to be the great cardinal doctrine of his political creed, and which constitutes his entire political stock in trade, and in the advocacy of which he has garnered whatever political notoriety he possesses, he is outrightly in harmony with President Wilson.

A Fool-Proof Election.

Hoover and Smith — Both Able but Very Different

The Prohibition Planks Men, Not Platforms, Are Elected to Office

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

A joy over the presidential situation of 1928. I had never hoped to see the time when, within the space of three short weeks, the Republicans would nominate an honest man and the Democrats an intelligent one, yet here we are. Hoover and Coolidge, in my opinion, could not make a serious mistake this year if it tried. And this is fortunate, for if the American voter is given the slightest opportunity to make a mistake, the chances are three to one he will make it. In the last presidential election, for example, he had his choice among Davis and La Follette, two extraordinarily able men, and Coolidge. He picked Coolidge. This time he is up against a fool-proof proposition—there isn't a poor candidate in the race. Even the Socialist nominee, Norman Thomas, is a man of brilliant attainments.

DO not mean to suggest that Smith and Hoover resemble each other or that either would give the country pretty much the same kind of administration. Far from it. Both are great administrators, but Smith is warm and Hoover is cold. Both have shown a talent for governing, but Smith does it by sympathy and intuition, and Hoover by mathematics.
Smith sees human society as a living body, full of human juices and human notions, while Hoover sees it as a production machine.
Hoover is a dry chiefly because he thinks prohibition has increased the output of the factories; Smith is for modification because he believes in the human mind as such that the Volstead act cannot be enforced, and that its widespread violation is injuring the public morale. In short, these men would give opposite things as they ident, but either could do them well. At least this reporter thinks so.

CERTAIN critics have accused the Democratic party of cowardice for failing, in the platform adopted at Houston, to declare either for or against prohibition as principle and for containing itself with the mere declaration that the law should be enforced as long as it remains a law. But is the criticism either accurate or fair? The fact is that the party is about equally divided on the question. Had the platform asserted that the party as a whole was either for or against prohibition, it would have asserted what everyone knew. It would have been accused of stating a falseness in an effort to catch votes.

As a matter of fact, that is precisely what the Republicans did at Kansas City. Their platform states, in effect, that the Republican party as a whole is dry.
Everyone knows that is not true.
The Republicans are almost evenly divided on the subject as the Democrats are. What happened was this: After sizing up the political situation, the Republican platform makers concluded that they would get more votes if they adopted a dry plank, so they adopted one. The Democrats refused to do that. Instead, they took the only ground on which they could agree.
Wets and dries agreed that the law should be enforced while it remains, and that the Republicans had not enforced it.

THE Democrats agreed on another thing, namely, that Gov.
Smith should be the party nominee. He was not nominated because he was wet, but because he had demonstrated, as Governor of New York, that he was the Democratic best qualified to win and administer the office of President.
Being an honest and a courageous man, he immediately announced that he intended to work for modification of the prohibition laws. So where is the cowardice? The party is divided on one issue, and admits it. It is united on the candidate, and proclaims it. The candidate has made his own position perfectly clear. Where is the evasion?

I THINK the critics are confused.
It is one thing to dodge a question, and quite another thing to be hopelessly divided over it. As everyone knows, platforms are very little consequence, anyhow, except as they may catch a few votes. You don't elect a platform to office—you elect a man. Hoover is in favor of the present prohibition laws, and Smith believes they should be modified. It shouldn't be difficult for the voter to choose between them.

nation by Gen. Gomez for the establishment of a new port, has been accepted by the Venezuelan Congress. The property covers approximately 50,000 acres.

FORMER PREMIER GIOLITTI OF ITALY IS GRAVELY ILL

Family Called to Bedside of Aged Statesman Who Opposed Mussolini.

By the Associated Press.
CAVOUR, Italy, July 10.—Former Premier Giovanni Giolitti, who is gravely ill from a recurrence of his old uric trouble, with complications causing paralysis of one leg, passed a good night. His condition this morning is stationary.
The aged statesman received the last sacraments yesterday. His daughter and son have been summoned.

Giolitti's last dramatic act in the Chamber of Deputies was when he opposed Mussolini, denounced the Fascist measures and declined to vote for the electoral law early this year.

SOUTH TYROL SENDS APPEAL TO AUSTRIA AGAINST ITALY

Mayors of 300 Towns Urge Chancellor to Urge Protest to Entire World.

By the Associated Press.
VIENNA, July 10.—Mayors of approximately 300 towns in the South Tyrol have sent an appeal to Chancellor Seipel of Austria, urging him to raise a solemn protest before the entire world against Italy's harsh treatment of weak and helpless Austria. In suppressing the German language in churches, schools and courts and in Italianizing the whole area.

So far as relations between the two Governments are concerned, the controversy over Italy's attitude toward the South Tyrol was liquidated several days ago upon the return of Signor Aulenti, Italian Minister in Vienna, to his post.

His return followed receipt of a message from Chancellor Seipel addressed to Premier Mussolini, stating that Austria's official position was to regard the affairs of the South Tyrol, former Austrian territory, as purely an internal matter for Italy.

COOLIDGE TO LET HOOVER AND WORK LEAVE CABINET

Announces He Will Accept Their Resignations, but Date of Retirement Has Not Been Decided.

By the Associated Press.

SUPERIOR, Wis., July 10.— President Coolidge will accept the resignation from the Cabinet of Secretary Hoover of the Commerce Department, but the date of acceptance has not been decided as yet.

President Coolidge will not ask the Republican presidential candidate to remain in the Cabinet during the whole electoral campaign.

The resignation of Secretary
Work of the Interior Department will also be accepted by Mr. Coolidge.

The chief executive has many names before him to fill both vacancies. As yet he has made no final choice.

Work Considers Weekly Conferences With Eastern Leaders.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, July 10.—As a means to an effective campaign in the East, already termed the battleground of the political struggle,
Chairman Work of the Republican National Committee is considering the advisability of holding a series of regular weekly conferences to be attended by Eastern party leaders.

So far as is known, he has arrived at no decision on this point, but he has called for such a meeting at New York on Monday. It is expected that the conference will be similar to that held here on Saturday, at which an Eastern advisory council was formed. Work plans to be present.

Herbert Hoover's plans for the future are now definite. He is to leave Washington Saturday night for the Summer White House in Wisconsin, and after a day with President Coolidge, proceed to the Pacific coast, arriving in San Francisco July 20. After a reception

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress or reform, never for injustice or corruption, always fight for the rights of all parties, never for any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

What Price I. T. S. Franchise?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

A LONG editorial in a St. Louis newspaper denounces the obstructionist tactics of the Board of Aldermen in withholding a franchise that the Illinois Terminal System is seeking in North St. Louis.

Was the city's attitude unfriendly when the I. T. S. wanted the plaza at the west end of the McKinley Bridge when a block of buildings was condemned to create this little market at the expense of the neighborhood taxpayers, while two blocks away Hyde Park looks like a neglected cow pasture and the children play around a large mudhole that was formerly a pretty pond?

There are many acres of industrial property in North St. Louis, with adequate terminal facilities, that have stood vacant for 40 years, surrounded by tumble-down houses and shacks. Why create more? Must North St. Louis consent to switch yards along the I. T. S. tracks, to switch tracks to the Brecht Co., to the Krey Packing Co., to the Schorr-Kolkschneider Brewery, to a grade crossing that would permanently ruin East Cass avenue, and make a desert of many square blocks for the benefit of a half dozen industries?

Wherein lies the civic value of a freight station on Twelfth and Washington? Picture Twelfth street glutted with transfer trucks south to Locust street and beyond, and Washington avenue east and west.

Cass avenue is experiencing a rebirth and is looking to the future with confidence. North St. Louis east of Grand boulevard, because of its location, will, too, come back, if the Board of Aldermen does not saddle it with many generations with the blight of switch tracks.

R. P. K.

Just What Are They?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I WAS much interested in a statement made recently by Herbert Hoover, that he would, if elected, carry out the policies of his predecessor. As an interested student of modern politics, unfortunately possessing no telephonic powers, I would be grateful to anyone who could inform me as to just what the policies of our President are.

"AUNT HOGAN."

The Pontchartrain Flasco.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

LESS than six weeks ago the gross evils of private toll bridge manipulation and inflation were first pointed out in the Post-Dispatch. But even the harshest critics did not suspect that the collapse of three of these projects (New Orleans, Mobile and Miami) would follow so swiftly.

Deluded investors have now registered alarm and thus Broker Dysart attempts an "alibi" by way of blaming the New Orleans Pontchartrain Bridge flasco on a political squabble. Far from it—the promoters were amply warned of the conditions, in spite of their desire for profit led them on. If Mr. Dysart has been correctly quoted as observing that "cash is on hand and will continue to be on hand to pay interest," his remark is surprising, to say the least. Up to this time all interest has been paid (as is entirely proper in a construction project for the first two years of operation, according to modern accounting practice) out of the proceeds of the sale of bonds.

Earnings of the Pontchartrain Bridge are "in the red" heavily and to one knows this better than a broker who sold the bonds. The project is a failure up to this time and if there is any doubt on this point, let those who sold these bonds to the public submit a balance-sheet and income account of any recent date. Let the facts, reflected by figures, speak!

So far as price is concerned, it is questionable what the bonds would bring, if offered in quantity. They have already sold as low as 50 cents on the dollar and no matter what Mr. Dysart may say about "paper losses" and the like, property is worth only what you can get for it—and you cannot get much for any of the three private toll bridge securities at this particular moment!

R. A. WARREN.

Traffic Conditions on Forest Park Avenue.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Blocked at the intersection of Forest Park avenue and Newstead by a collision of three trucks, one going east on Forest Park and two north on Newstead. This condition is of almost daily occurrence. When we complain we are told that we are no longer a boulevard; therefore, we cannot have stop signals for the north and south traffic as we had previous to the change from boulevard to avenue. So far there have been no fatalities from these collisions, but many serious results. Is there no way for people who do not live on boulevards to get relief before the fatalities occur?

SMITH AND HAY.

James A. Collet, opponent of Charles M. Hay for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator, missed the essential point in his attack upon Mr. Hay for running on a dry platform while supporting Gov. Smith for the presidency.

Mr. Collet accuses Mr. Hay of disloyalty to the head of the ticket. The question of loyalty does not figure in the case. Both candidates are loyal to the Democratic platform, but they differ in opinion on a big issue which Gov. Smith has created by the expression of his own personal views. Doubtless many dry Democrats, like Mr. Hay, will support Gov. Smith on other issues than that of prohibition. And, as Mr. Hay aptly replies, surely the Democratic party does not want to drive these dry votes out of the party.

As a candidate for the United States Senate, however, Mr. Hay's difference of opinion with Gov. Smith is important. Gov. Smith is against Federal prohibition, and not only believes there should be changes in the laws, but he has said that as the chosen leader of his party he believed it to be his duty to point the way out of the intolerable conditions created by Federal prohibition. Mr. Hay, on the other hand, believes in Federal prohibition and would oppose any changes in the laws.

If Gov. Smith were elected to the presidency, under his pledge he would try to change the laws so that the power to determine what should be done with regard to the liquor question would be restored to the states. If Mr. Hay were elected to the Senate he would do all in his power to prevent Gov. Smith from effecting any changes. He would work and vote against Gov. Smith's anti-Federal prohibition policy, whatever it might be.

The Democratic ticket, therefore, in this State, with Gov. Smith as the presidential candidate and Mr. Hay as the senatorial candidate, would be a bad combination for the voters. If they voted the ticket, with a vote for a President who would try to change the Federal prohibition laws, and for a Senator who would try to block all the changes the President may want to make, the voters who voted for both would be trying to do what Mr. Collet says Mr. Hay is trying to do—ride two horses, one going south and the other going north.

Since nominations are made by primaries, and thus by the strongest faction of the party, and not by the representatives of the whole party, inconsistencies in the ticket cannot be charged to the party. But Democratic voters would be charged with insincerity if they put on the ticket with an anti-prohibition presidential candidate a prohibition senatorial candidate.

We do not see how those who believe in Gov. Smith's view and want to give him a free hand to work out the changes he thinks necessary in the prohibition laws can vote for Mr. Hay. It would be futile to vote for a President who wants to solve the liquor question in some way other than prohibition, and vote for a senatorial candidate who would do everything in his power to prevent the President from working out his solution.

Mr. Hay is as frank in stating his views on prohibition as Gov. Smith has been. They differ on that question as far as the north from the south pole. Their views are irreconcilable. If the Democratic voters vote for both they will vote to block any action on Federal prohibition.

O, GEORGE! O, MOSES!

In all our fantasies of the coming campaign, George Moses (in person) was in the forefront of the G. O. P. cavalcade. He was leading it across the desert toward the land of milk and honey. Sometimes we pictured him in the role in which he excelled at Kansas City, driving a steam-roller roughed-shod over the Egyptians. Again we saw him attired in long, white (but neatly trimmed) whiskers making delightful speeches to rally his followers. In short, we expected and even hoped that George Moses would be rewarded for as skillful a piece of permanent-chairmanship as we have seen in a long time. Wherefore, we deprecate this dark and ugly rumor that Moses and Dr. Work cannot get along together. A hard-boiled standpatter though he be, Moses' wit and effervescence are badly needed to lighten the dreadful solemnity of the Hoover camp.

GUIDANCE FOR VOTERS.

No voter should slavishly submit his judgment to any other man or to a group of men, but when he is ignorant or doubtful of the fitness of candidates it is well to take counsel of those who do know.

In the case of ignorance or doubt on the part of the voters lies the value of the vote on candidates for judicial offices of the members of the Bar Association. Thousands of voters are ignorant of the qualifications of candidates for the bench. They have no means of knowing unless the candidates have served, and even then they have little means of judging qualifications.

Members of the Bar Association, however, come in contact with judges and with their fellow lawyers and thus have the means of forming judgment. They are deeply interested in the selection of judges and undoubtedly the majority of them want qualified and honest men on the bench.

The preference vote of the members of the Missouri Bar Association offers at least a guide to voters who are ignorant or in doubt. Of the Republican candidates for the Supreme bench Mr. William F. Frank, former Assistant Attorney-General and a commissioner of the Kansas City Court of Appeals, received the highest vote. There is no contest for the Democratic nomination. The Democratic Committee will name a substitute for the late Judge Graves, who was the only Democratic candidate.

For the St. Louis Court of Appeals, Judge William D. Becker, the present incumbent, received an overwhelming majority of the votes cast for Republican candidates. Robert L. Sutton was the overwhelming preference among the Democratic candidates. The selection for the Kansas City Court of Appeals among the Republican candidates, there being no Democratic contest, is Harry L. Donnelly. And Robert J. Smith was the selection among the Republican candidates for judge of the Springfield Court of Appeals. There was no Democratic contest there.

Voters who are ignorant or who cannot resolve their doubts concerning the candidates for the bench will be wise to follow the expressed preferences of the members of the Bar Association.

Mrs. Clem Shaver, whose husband managed John W. Davis' campaign, has belted Al Smith. But unless she persuades more people to vote for Hoover in 1928 than her husband persuaded to vote for Davis in 1924, it won't amount to much. Incidentally, Clem's last claim to fame as a manager has vanished. Apparently he has no more weight at home than in public.

WILL ALDERMEN BE DUPED?

Undoubtedly, the action of 15 members of the Board of Aldermen yesterday in yielding to pressure and consenting to a special session of the full Board to pass the Illinois Terminal System ordinance was taken in the belief that the amendment offered by City Counselor Muench made certain that the obnoxious Cass avenue grade crossing would be eliminated.

The Public Utilities Committee of the Board repeatedly and emphatically has indicated that it would favor no franchise creating such a menace to public safety. The full Board, by an overwhelming vote, passed consideration until autumn because it would tolerate no grade crossing. There is no explanation of such a reversal of position by both Committee and Board except that the Aldermen believe that the amendment makes certain that the Cass avenue grade crossing will be corrected.

Of course, the amendment does no such thing. The City Counselor does not pretend that it does. He admits, in fact, that it does not. The amendment does not better the bill one iota. In one respect, it renders it even more objectionable.

It shoulders upon the city the responsibility of finding a way to eliminate the crossing. If the city can find no way, then the crossing remains—forever. Only one possible way yet has been suggested. That was by President Kinsey of the Board of Public Service, involving a large outlay of money, and the changing of grades of several streets with consequential damage to private property. Kinsey submits it as a "possible" way. He refrains from recommending it as practical. Indeed, he calls it a "complicated mess."

If the city does find a way and the railroad thinks that way too costly or impractical or not feasible or objectionable in any one of a dozen ways, it can so plead to the Public Service Commission and the Commission can relieve the railroad of its franchise promise. Mr. Muench's amendment becomes a scrap of paper. The crossing remains forever.

The Board of Aldermen should not be hoodwinked into the belief that the amendment protects the public interest. The railroad must not be given a franchise that will permit it to wriggle its fingers at the public for 50 years.

There is no need for haste. If action is insisted upon now—at once, then there can be only one wise course—kill the bill.

SAFER AND SANER FOURTHS.

Celebration of the Fourth of July, it has been figured up, cost the lives of 205 men, women and children throughout the country. But it is noticeable that only 11 of these deaths were caused by fireworks and other explosives. More than half of the whole number were cases of drowning, which is not a distinctive Fourth-of-July accident. Nor can the motor-car deaths be so classed, and there were 54 of these—no more than any other summer holiday is apt to record.

The change which has taken place since the days before the safe-and-sane-Fourth agitation began for the nation's birthday celebrations is most striking.

Twenty years or more ago the death list would often reach 400 or more and was directly attributable in greater part to the use of explosives which had become universal—making the day a terror dreaded by all. Nor did the death lists of a day or two after tell the whole story. There was the deadly tetanus, or lockjaw, to be heard from later.

The country owes much to the public-spirited physicians and others who started the safe-and-sane-Fourth and have kept it up.

MARK TWAIN ON THE WEATHER.

People boast a good deal about Alpine thunderstorms; but the storms which I have had the luck to see in the Alps were not the equals of some I have seen in the Mississippi Valley. I may not have seen the Alps do their best, of course, and if they can beat the Mississippi Valley I don't wish to—"Life on the Mississippi."

If old Mark's ghost still haunts these parts, his fiery soul, freed of earthly hopes and fears, would have been gladdened by at least two storms in the recent past that must have rivaled even that memorable one described in "Tom Sawyer." We are willing to pit such terrific cannonading and blinding incessant lightning flashes against the most mighty of Alpine storms. And earthbound as we are, we voice Mark's hope that if in the Alps or elsewhere there are thunderstorms superior to these we hope we may never encounter them.

FOOTNOTE TO A POLITICAL PROPHECY.

Those prophets who are predicting that the South will not vote for a Catholic and a wet have little history to justify them. In 1880, for example, the South cast a solid Democratic vote for Gen. Winfield S. Hancock, despite the fact that Gen. Hancock was a hero of the battle of Gettysburg on the Union side. The South has been solid ever since, with the exception of a few border states, regardless of the candidate. This solidity may be deplored as anachronistic, just as the solidity of the Northwestern farmer on the Republican side may be denounced as unintelligent; nevertheless, it exists. And that's that.

We expect a vigorous protest from the ectoplasm that was Anthony Comstock to the statement that vice in New York is worse than it was when he was in his heyday.

AIR TRAVEL, ENGLISH FASHION

The British commercial air lines carried 18,874 passengers last year without an accident. Their business is growing, and the Government subsidy paid to them was about $1,250,000. Of this, $500,000 went to the Egypt-India service.

The British air service has a wonderful reputation for safety. From September, 1920, when four persons were killed, until September, 1923, when five were lost, it did not kill a passenger. It lost six passengers and a pilot in December, when one of its planes fell immediately after leaving the Croydon field. The figures consistently stand comparison with any other kind of travel except that by water. The fatalities are less proportionately than are those in automobile travel, and they are no greater than those on the railroads.

Remarkable as the British commercial record in the air is, it is still less so than that of the celebrated Lufthansa lines of Germany. These are more extensive than the British, and they involve a vastly greater volume of traffic. Yet accidents have been rarer ever since the service was instituted. The most distressing was that in September, 1927, when Baron Ago von Maltzan, German Ambassador to the United States, was one of six killed in an accident on the line between Berlin and Munich. The Lufthansa service also lost three persons in May of this year.

Is the Tariff the Issue?

THE CHIEF ISSUE.

From the Springfield, Mass., Republican.

CHAIRMAN WORK of the Republican National Committee is a politician of extraordinary discernment if he has correctly picked the tariff as the chief issue. Few can imagine the country this year pouncing on that as the most important and pressing subject for its consideration in electing a President.

But why laugh at Chairman Work? His job is to find the issue that will least divide the Republican party. Viewing the field as a master strategist, the tariff looks tempting to him. He dare not emphasize the farm question; nor the prohibition question, which are the sorest now engaging public attention. For these split the Republican party wide open. So back to Mark Hanna and his slogan, the "full dinner pail." The dinner pail is not full at New Bedford, nor at Fall River, nor in the bituminous coal fields. The corn belt farmers are disposed to regard the tariff as a "sell." But do not shoot at the fiddler when he is playing his best. Chairman Work may urge in his own behalf.

THEY WILL WELCOME TARIFF TALK.

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

LOUD encomiums of the tariff will form the main part of Herbert Hoover's campaign if the candidate follows the lead of his manager, Dr. Hubert Work, chairman of the Republican National Committee, declares in Chicago that the campaign "will be waged on the protective tariff and its benefits." He knows, presumably, what Mr. Hoover intends to do.

He has failed to take into account the fact that the Democratic platform does not make the tariff itself an issue. That platform does not raise the question of the merits of the tariff system. In fact, it proposes a tariff policy designed to maintain high wages. It attacks those tariff provisions that have been condemned as special favors granted for the payment of political debts; it proposes restoring the effectiveness of the long-stalled Tariff Commission; it urges the adjustment of tariff rates to the actual differences of production costs in the respective countries affected; it would distribute tariff benefits among the many, as against the favored few, and particularly as against tariff-protected monopolies. But these proposals have to do with the manner of administration of the tariff and not with its principle.

A defense of the tariff principle, if put forward by Mr. Hoover, will in fact, merely cut thin air. If he means to defend the manner in which the tariff has been administered of late, he will have a large subject to deal with, but one in which he must make explanations, rather than point with pride to the record.

In any case, he will do well to deal with one recent tariff development. The Department of Commerce last month issued estimates of the 1927 reports of the chief States, as compared with the corresponding totals for 1926. A number of the great agricultural States, according to the estimates of Mr. Hoover's own Department, showed declines in the export totals. Missouri, for example, sent abroad $4,000,000 less than in 1926; the exports of Illinois declined by some $2,800,000. The farmers naturally want to know what can be said for tariff arrangements that permit of such declines in the exports of their states. Just why the Republican campaign should deem it wise to stress the tariff this summer does not appear; but farmers will naturally welcome the decision as possibly leading to a discussion of the unsatisfactory condition of their exports.

THE SETTLEMENT OF DIFFERENCES.

From the Courier-Journal.

DR. WORK, the new Chairman of the National Republican Committee, seems to feel pretty sure he knows all about the presidential campaign, and he is not backward in confiding to the country what he feels so sure he knows. Hoover, Dr. Work announces, will win, and the protective tariff, not prohibition, will be the issue.

"This campaign," says the Doctor, "will be waged on the protective tariff and its benefits. The voters will ballot to protect the American payroll, which is the greatest in the world. The protective tariff will protect the wages of the American working man in the mines, mills and fields. He then will have money to buy the farm products."

Apparently Dr. Work's remedy for "farm relief" is the protective tariff, which will furnish the working man money with which to buy the farmer's products. But the Doctor doesn't pause to explain why that has not already relieved the farmer. We have had the present highest of protective tariffs almost ever since the return of the Republicans to power, but the farmer does not seem to be aware he has been relieved.

Nor is it apparent just how Chairman Work arrives at his dictum that the protective tariff is to be the issue of the campaign. The Democrats at Houston certainly did not take it upon themselves to oppose a protective tariff. On the contrary, they adopted the old Republican doctrine that "actual difference between the cost of production at home and abroad, with adequate safeguard for the wage of the American laborer, must be the extreme measure of every tariff rate."

There is no Democratic revenue tariff there, nor in the whole Houston tariff plank. If there is no political party advocating a Democratic revenue tariff and opposing a protective tariff, it is not exactly clear how Dr. Work sees the protective tariff as the issue of the campaign. He must have much better eyes, or glasses, than have revenue tariff Democrats. A few of whom, notwithstanding the Houston platform, are still left in the country.

But having attributed prosperity and good wages to the protective tariff and declared that tariff, not prohibition, is the issue of the campaign, Dr. Work, in the same statement, as quoted by the United Press, says, "prosperity that is now felt in the country is due to prohibition. There is more money in the banks and more children have shoes than ever before. The worker will vote to protect his payroll."

First, according to the Doctor, it is the protective tariff that is the cause of prosperity. This tariff, and not prohibition, will be the issue, and the people will vote for it and the American payroll. Then, according to the same Doctor, the prosperity that is now felt is due to prohibition and the worker will vote for it to protect his payroll.

"All that we need to do," concludes Chairman Work, "is to sit back peacefully while the Democrats settle their differences." But it does seem that Chairman Work has some differences of his own which, rather than lapse into total idleness, he might undertake to settle.

A cabin in the wilderness is now required. As witnessing the birth of those who made the White House door, No longer from our Presidents we ask that humble touch. Which proves that in this favored land, birth does not matter much. But millionaires among us still will claim the humble soil. And vow they gained their fortunes all by persevering toil.

Then in the humid summer time, with children's stumps displayed, How many of our millionaires began with lemonade?

From lemonade to wealth untold is not an idle dream. He got his start in lemonade—Oh, what a charming theme.

For such as love to read the tale how millions may be had In copper, oil or railroad stocks by any likely lad; Upon some humble stand today the lemonade may set.

That paves the way to fortune that some candidate may get; As I recall the varied ways in which a million's made.

How many of our plutocrats began with lemonade?

Imaginary Conversations. First politician: The frank stand of the opposition on prohibition will win a lot of votes. Second matter-mind: Then we will say that the tariff is the big issue.

We have our idle moments when we speculate as to how Curtis, who voted both ways on farm relief, feels about the matter at the present time.

The consensus of opinion on the Tamm-Hoover fight is that Smith stands a pretty good chance to win.

In Utopia, we suppose, where things are all as they should be, Peggy Joyce eventually would marry a Vanderbilt.

Still, an invention like television should enable some of the candidates to face some of the issues.

ADVENTURES OF AN AFRICAN SLAVER. By Capt. Theodore Canot. Edited by Brantz Mayer. (A. C. Boni.)

NOW that Trader Horn, as we are led to infer, has definitely entered the ranks of the great literateurs (Did somebody snicker "No"?), in two partly volumes of "works" it would be surprising if enterprising publishers did not beat the brush in the shape of chasing out other African traders similarly gifted. It costs a very penny out of hot air, but once one has been created, it is possible to put across others of the same sort at a relatively slight expense.

It's a good deal like fishing. In some ways. You wander along the stream, casting here and there with indifferent luck, until you chance upon a fellow who is hooking 'em as fast as he can swing. He is using grasshoppers, whereas you have foolishly been offering honest-to-goodness beefsteak. So you bait with grasshoppers. There's a good deal in knowing what they're biting on.

If A. C. ### Prime Beef Served Rare

ADVENTURES OF AN AFRICAN SLAYER. By Capt. Theodore Canot. Edited by Brantz Mayer. (A. C. Boni.)

Now that Trader Horn, as we are led to infer, has definitely entered the ranks of the great explorers (Did somebody snicker?) and achieved the dignity of "works" in two portly volumes with more than 100 illustrations, it is not surprising if enterprising publishers did not beat the brush in the case of chasing out other African slayers similarly gifted. It costs a lot of money to create a great literary genius out of hot air, but once one has been created, it is possible to put across others of the same sort at a relatively slight expense.

It's a good deal like fishing, in some ways. You wander along the stream, casting here and there with indifferent luck, until you come upon a fellow who is looking 'em as fast as he can swing the rod. He is using grasshoppers, whereas you have foolishly been offering honest-to-goodness beefsteak. So you bait with grasshoppers. There's a good deal in knowing what they're biting on.

If A. C. Boni had any such notion in mind when they decided to publish "Adventures of an African Slayer" (and in their blurb they do refer adroitly to Trader Horn), it is a pleasure to note, even at the risk of driving away some of the fish, that there is some mistake. This isn't grasshopper bait, but prime beef served rare.

Capt. Canot, who lived his best years during the twenties and thirties of the past century, was the son of an Italian mother and a French father. The young dandy's feet began to itch very early, and he was off for a sea-rover's life when most boys are still wrestling with the three Rs. Most of his education, such as it was, he got from an American sea captain, and, being clever in a fox-like way, he learned easily what ever he cared to know. He served under various flags—Dutch, Spanish, English, Portuguese, Brazilian, Colombian—becoming, it appears, a first-class navigator. However, it was not until he entered the navy that his peculiar abilities shone forth with their true brilliance.

Some years had passed since the slave traffic had been outlawed, when Canot entered the business in 1819. "African apprentices" were then selling in Cuba at $250 on the hoof, and in New Orleans as high as $1100. There wasn't any bootlegging for an enterprising man to do in those days, so Canot became a broker of "black ivory." For over 20 years he remained in the business, making and losing fortunes; but in 1852, he was hanging about the wharves of Baltimore, a broken old man, bumping drinks from those who designed to notice him. It was then that Brantz Mayer, founder of the Maryland Historical Society, undertook the task of recording the old fellow's memories, now presented to the world.

And what a book it is for those who revel in tales of strange and desperate adventures! Nor is there any reason to suspect that the clever old demon was "spitting" his Roswell to any considerable extent. Canot, by his own confession, was a cruel and conscienceless man. He could scarcely have been successful had he been otherwise, for, aside from the inhuman character of his business, he was constantly dealing with other shrewd dare-devils who knew nothing of honor or pity. It is because the man had become conscienceless that one accepts his tale substantially as written, save for occasional transparent efforts to rationalize some especially atrocious act; and such efforts are as amusing as Cellini's insistence upon his own exemplary uprightness. Furthermore, Canot's story is told with a convincing circumstantiality that cannot be the product of imagination. He never grows vague at any point, as windy old codgers do, and his details fit perfectly together from beginning to end.

Aside from being a very remarkable book of adventure, Canot's narrative deserves to survive as a vivid record of the slave trade days. It is a contribution.

As for Brantz Mayer, who has furnished the introduction, is somewhat unfair in appraising the style of the Baltimore journalist. "His style," writes Mr. Cowley, "is turgid, bombastic, sometimes ungrammatical and generally euphuistic." The blurb on the jacket also emphasizes this view, probably with the intention of assuring the public that Canot's book is indeed another "Trader Horn"; and it isn't. It is a far better book. Mr. Cowley comes much nearer doing justice to Mayer's style when he adds: "And yet, it has a dignity which is not unappealing in these days of mountebank writers and simple declarative sentences." If Mayer is occasionally bombastic, turgid and euphuistic, it was more or less the fashion of the time to write so.

"THE STUDENT PRINCE" A LOVELY PRODUCTION

Donnelly - Romberg Operetta Finely Done Before Big Audience in Forest Park.

THE STUDENT PRINCE, a spectacular operetta in a prologue and four acts by Dorothy Donnelly and Sigmund Romberg. Presented at the Municipal Theater with the following cast: Van Mark ..... William McCarthy Dr. Engel ..... Charles Gallagher Prince Karl Franz ..... Sam Ash Roder ..... Johnny Hanley Gretchen ..... Dorothy Seger Tony ..... Arthur Sazer Belle ..... Joseph Burke Lucas ..... Gilbert Welcott Von Aslerberg ..... Robert Betts Nicolas ..... Victor Robbins Kathie ..... Alice MacKinnon Luis ..... Florence Ames Hubert ..... Lee Daly Grand Duchess Anastasia ..... Bernice Merston Princess Leonora ..... Leonora Alton Captain Tarnitz ..... Joseph Royer Countess Lexden ..... Camilla Cunningham Baron Amheim ..... Jan Sadio

H. H. NIEMEYER. The Municipal Opera Company added very decidedly to its laurels with the presentation, last night, of the delightful operetta, "The Student Prince" which was given its first performance by a repertory company. A great crowd, but not a record-breaking one, witnessed the opening and enjoyed the Dorothy Donnelly-Sigmund Romberg operetta immensely—except at one point.

Although the piece is new to the Forest Park stage the story, and the music, is familiar to all theater-goers. First, as a drama, known as "Old Heidelberg" it was played here several times by Richard Mansfield and later by Aubrey Boucicault, both long since gone to the place where good actors go. Then, after a good many years during the present season the movies played the story, a picture which ranks with the best films of the year. It is hardly necessary then, to retell the plot here. Suffice it to say that it is a story of Prince Karl Franz, of Karlsruhe, who enters the University of Heidelberg, falls in love with Kathie, a barmaid at a student's inn and is about to elope with her when he is called back to his own country to become king. There he finds his life carefully planned for him, his wife selected and his mode of living laid out to the most minute detail. Stuffed, after a time, by the atmosphere of the court Karl Franz rushes back to Heidelberg and Kathie only to see that a king can no longer find the joys of student life and in the end he accepts the inevitable and prepares to settle down to the routine his ministers have provided for him.

In the versions of "The Student Prince" presented here before Karl Franz bows to his fate with a sad heart in which the memory of Kathie will always be securely bound. Last night's finish was made a rather enjoyable affair with the King finding the parting from his sweetheart a not very serious matter and accepting his future with considerable joy. It is hardly as effective as the sadder ending and even the motion picture play, always prone to twist the final fade out into a happy event, did not make such a change. The audience however seemed to be satisfied and if some 3000 persons liked it there is little necessity in trying to convince them that they did not.

In an effort to provide comedy, however, the comedians were permitted to drag in a joke, so called, about Santa Claus, which, for brazen vulgarity has hardly been surpassed in a first-class theater, at least locally. It got some laughs, of course, but the better part of the audience actually gasped with amazement and whoever heads the Committee of the Municipal Opera Company on Comedy should be sure that this piece of unwarranted coarseness is not repeated tonight.

Sam Ash gave a fine performance as Karl Franz and Alice Mackenzie was charming as Kathie. The comedy was finely handled by Florence Ames and Charles Gallagher who as a delightful Dr. Engel, the old tutor of the student Prince. The singing by the members of the male chorus was really a treat.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, July 10. THE spiritual distortion of the younger generation has provided an endless theme for writers, playwrights and moralists. If they are to be believed, flaming youth is burning out in a white hot flame. New York is painted a paradise of adolescent wickedness.

The moment a child is able to reach for a cocktail here he begins the scamper off on a sin-stained career. The girl who reaches 18 without being trundled off to an alcoholic cure is regarded as eccentric. At least this has become a growing notion.

Somehow the other side of the picture is never revealed. There is a young man of 20 who is studying dentistry. At 5 o'clock every evening he becomes a taxi driver until midnight. He reaches his college every morning at 8 and supports his mother.

There are two sisters who are waitresses in one of the chains of restaurants. Their working hours are from 7 in the evening until midnight. On account of their beauty they have had three theatrical offers—one from Ziegfeld no less. They support themselves as waitresses and do social welfare work during the day.

That the younger generation is not going to pot is also proved by the large number of ambitious young men who are working as bellhops, elevator operators, movie ushers and soda jerkers and devoting spare time to studying for a profession. These are numbered in the thousands.

Nor is this ambitious activity confined to sons and daughters of poverty-stricken homes. A recent social survey shows there are in New York more than 20,000 young men and women under 25 whose family affluence precludes the necessity of working, who have become financially independent. And if one takes the trouble to visit the various social centers where intellectual attainments are made possible for young folk they will find them crowded.

WHEN you put water into the Frigidaire trays to be frozen you are never disappointed. It freezes! It freezes quickly... solidly... all the way through. There is no delay. The freezing compartment is always cold enough to freeze ice cubes several times a day. Before you buy an electric refrigerator find out about the experiences of other people. Ask these questions: Will it freeze ice? A fresh supply for every meal? Always?

The powerful Frigidaire mechanism which freezes ice under all conditions is completely out of sight and out of the way. There's nothing to mar Frigidaire's practical beauty. Nothing to collect dirt and dust. You can use the top of the cabinet for shelf space.

Surplus power in Frigidaire assures the results you want

Frigidaire engineers have learned the necessity for power. So surplus power is built into Frigidaire. You can make frozen salads and desserts whenever you want them. You'll never have to wait all day for ice to freeze just because the weather turns hot. You'll never have to hear an overburdened motor running constantly. Examine a Frigidaire and you'll see the reason.

Here is a powerful motor and a Cooling Unit of super-strength. Power is transmitted in the most effective way by means of a V-type belt, the most important development in power transmission of the past decade.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH AIRPORT BOND ISSUE PROBLEMS OUTLINED

Defeat of $2,000,000 Proposal Would Leave City Hopelessly Behind in Aviation.

All the aeronautical advantages already gained by St. Louis by reason of its geographical position and the flying exploits of Col. Lindbergh will be hopelessly lost if the voters fail to approve the $2,000,000 airport bond issue proposal at the election on Aug. 7, Lou Sanders of the Municipal Airport Bond Issue Committee, said today.

He spoke at a luncheon, at Hotel Statler, of the Advertising Club and Chamber of Commerce.

Lindbergh's Wish for St. Louis.

"St. Louis could inherit no greater fortune than the opportunity presented at this time to become the center of American air transportation," Sanders said.

"With our position in this great country surrounded on every side by its developments, industry and natural resources, we occupy the real center of the greatest republic on earth."

"Col. Lindbergh speaks as one young man to another—not as a young man of 25, but as the master in the art of aviation. His wish and hope definitely expressed are that St. Louis will grasp the opportunity and take a leading part in the development of the art that has spread the name of St. Louis to the remotest corner of the world."

"The Spirit of St. Louis has become more than the name of Lindbergh's famous ship. It has become a stimulant in a matter of community interest, civic and commercial. The historic airplane is in Washington, but the Spirit of St.
Louis is not in the Smithsonian Institute; it abides in the hearts of the men, women and children of this city because you cannot confine the Spirit of St. Louis within the walls of brick and mortar. All things are possible and within our grasp if we give expression to the real living Spirit of St. Louis."

Cross Roads of Aerial Lines.

"St. Louis is now at the cross roads of converging air lines, the center and the proper geographical air capital of the United States.
But it will be the actual aviation center only on one vital condition —adequate airport facilities. With a first-class airport St. Louis will take its natural place in aviation.
Such an airport will be constructed and made available for its important purpose if a sufficient number of voters approve the bond proposal."

"Should St. Louis, through indifference—the influence of greatest danger to the bonds—fail to approve the issue, then our hopes and expectations will be destroyed.
St. Louis, with the great prize of established, from conditio-reach, will no doubt have later to pay for an inferior field and accept what crumbs of aviation preferment may be tossed to us, while some other community reaps the benefits that should be ours. That is the history of the automobile industry and all great opportunities for civic development."

800 Cities Providing Airports.

"It is natural for other cities to create real competition and to offer inducements to have the airplane movement attracted to their cities, but regardless of what they may do, they fail in having the initial logical position. We must not permit them to display more civic pride than we show."

"Detroit has provided $4,500,000 for an airport and other cities are providing airports. We must not let another city get the start on us in the air field as Detroit did in the automobile industry."

"I want to appeal to every citi-

WITNESSES IN WILSON-VARE
CONTEST IGNORE SUBPENAS

15 Out of 42 Poll Tax Collectors Missing at Senate Sub-Committee's Hearing.

By the Associated Press.
PHILADELPHIA, July 16.—Fifteen out of 42 poll tax collectors sub-pened to appear today and tell how and to whom they issued tax receipts at the election in November, 1926, in which William S.
Vare, Republican, was declared elected over William B. Wilson, Democrat, failed to answer when their names were called at today's session of the investigation by the Senate Sub-Committee on privileges and Elections.

Wilson's contest against Vare is being heard by Senator Charles W. Waterman (Rep.), Colorado.
Wilson, who ran against Vare in the Democratic ticket, charges fraud.

Each of the deputy poll tax collectors is an election division registrar, appointed by the receiver of taxes at the time of registration.
All voters not paying a real estate tax must pay a poll tax of 25 cents a year. Harry Keely, receiver of taxes, testified yesterday that the lists of poll tax collectors had been destroyed but attorneys for Wilson produced a partial list of such collectors.

zen of St. Louis to consider the success of the airport bond issue as a personal matter and to have unanimous teamwork to carry the issue through to the end that St.
Louis may reap the benefits of the great opportunity now presented to it."

IVY LEE, publicist, student of public opinion, and adviser to great business interests, has made the kind of trip to Russia that you would like to make and presents the facts about Russia you would like to know in this new book

PRESENT-DAY RUSSIA

by Ivy Lee

What is really happening in Russia? How is the country being run and how do the people live? What about business concessions? Can trade or any kind of relations with the Soviet state be developed?

Such are the questions Mr. Lee has set up and answered from a frankly capitalistic viewpoint. His conclusions are of value to every keen-eyed American business man. J. Ramsay MacDonald, former prime minister of Great Britain, says of the book: "Now I have got something that is really useful. It explains things it gives me what I have long wanted—an objective account of how things are done."

Children's Bedtime Story

By Thornton W. Burgess

Experience proves there's no doubt, Those pleased with self had best watch out.

—Old Mother Nature.

WHITNEY, Peter Rabbit's little white son, was no longer white. That is to say, he no longer appeared white. He had stained that beautiful white coat of his with mud and muddy water until there was no whiteness left. "Now," said Whitney to himself, "I'm enough like my brothers and sisters to get along as well as they do." He was looking at his reflection in a little pool of water as he said this.

Whitney kicked up his heels and started adventuring in the Old Pasture. It was all very new and thrilling and inside was just enough of that feeling of fear to give him a delightful thrill.

Now, while Whitney had run away from the dear Old Briar patch, he was doing no more than every young Rabbit must do; he was simply starting out into the Great

It was Reddy Fox who was coming.

World to make a place for himself. There was nothing to tell about Whitney. You know his mother had taken special pains to teach him the things that a young Rabbit should know. She had felt, and rightly, that with that white coat he would need to know a very thing that a young Rabbit should be taught. So Whitney really was exceptionally well prepared to go out into the Great World. Now, as he started out to explore the Old Pasture, he remembered the things he had been taught and he did nothing foolish. He continually sat up and looked this way and that. He kept his ears open for every little sound. He tested every young little breeze that tickled his woolly little nose. He kept under cover as much as possible.

You will remember that Whittell the Marsh Hawk had seen Whitney on his way from the Old Briar patch to the Old Pasture and had nearly caught him. He hadn't forgotten that white rabbit. As he sailed low over the Green Meadows and the Old Pasture, quartering back and forth with those keen eyes of his watching for a mouse or a snake or a small Rabbit, he was keeping a special watch for that little white Rabbit.

"He is too young to have traveled far," said Whittell to himself. "He must be around somewhere. That white coat ought to show up a long ways off. The young scamp must be under ground somewhere, or I should have seen him before this. It is a long time since I have had a young Rabbit and I am hungry for one. I hope I catch this fellow before Reddy Fox or Old Man Coyote discovers him."

It was only a few minutes later that Whittell sailed over a bramble-tangle in the Old Pasture. His eyes bored down and all through it, but he saw nothing to interest him. When he had passed on, Whitney sat up. He had been lying among the dead leaves. He had seen Whittell and he had kept perfectly still. Had he moved Whittell would have seen him instantly. But Whittell had remembered what he had been taught.

Now that Whittell had passed on, Whitney chuckled. "It's didn't see me!" he exclaimed with great glee. "He didn't see me! And it was all because my coat is no longer white. Yes, sir, it is all because my coat is no longer white. Had it been white, he would have seen me right away. I did a smart thing when I muddled my coat. Yes, sir, I did a smart thing. Hello, there comes somebody down the path now."

It was Reddy Fox who was coming. Whitney once more crouched down among the leaves and kept perfectly still. Reddy came along and as he passed, he looked into every bramble-tangle that he passed. He looked into the one where Whitney lay. He didn't see Whitney. Had the wind been blowing from Whitney to him he would have discovered Whitney right away. But the wind was blowing the other way and Reddy trotted on past Whitney like a hugging himself. He certainly was pleased; if ever a Rabbit was.

London Debs Match Hair and Neckline

A STYLE innovation of the London debutantes is the fashion of grooming the line of the hair to follow the neckline of the frock worn.

The V-necked frock is given point by the reverse V of a middle parting, with hair drawn demurely back over the ears into a small bun at the nape of the neck, which is the favored coiffure of the moment.

With a round neckline the hair is parted low on one side and curved over the forehead. Ears are "worn" with this coiffure, and if the hair is being grown it is knotted softly or rolled in at the back; otherwise it is curled behind the head and kept in place with barrettes.

Scallops are chic for frocks and locks alike, and a scalloped neckline is repeated in hair waved in regular undulations which sometimes flow from either a middle or side parting.

The "bateau" or straight line from shoulder to shoulder, which is a feature of some new Paris models, has its parallel in the straight cut fringe which sometimes softens the severity of the new long bobs, revealing the ears of their wearers.

A fringed neckline is a good match for the wind blown bob, and if the hair curls in unruly fashion all over the head frilly necklines are suggested.

Child's Novel Found After Twenty Years

A N 11-year-old schoolgirl's 300,000 word novel, recently discovered among rubbish in a drawer where it was laid away 20 years ago and forgotten, has made its first appearance on London book stalls.

The novel is entitled "Pax, the Adventurous Horse," and its author is Miss Muriel Hodder, daughter of Col. W. M. Hodder. The story is not merely the tale of a horse, as the title indicates, but deals with the behavior of adults, as seen through the eyes of a child.

The Influence Of the Mother

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D., Former President of the American Medical Association.

A GOOD mother is the best influence that can be brought into the life of a child; a bad mother, however, may become a negative influence. This fact is brought out by Potts, who says that another outstanding feature in criminals is an extreme dependence on their mothers.

The man or woman who is unduly dependent on the mother and always wants to go back home, and is incapable of developing fresh interests and establishing a home of his or her own, is suffering from a form of weakness which is very often the cause of unsatisfactory conduct. It has been pointed out that, as civilization goes on, it is necessary for the individual to become more and more individual, and more and more independent. In a simple community all the members live more or less together; in civilized life it is necessary for a large number of people to go far away from their homes. Primitive races cannot do that. The primitive, if he has to go and live away from his tribe, is intensely unhappy and is incapable of living a satisfactory life. There is only a limited number of people who can leave home and pioneer; some are so weak and dependent on those who provide their early training and the simple pleasures of their early life that they can never really separate themselves and develop an independent existence.

Other causes of delinquency and crime are lack of balance, likewise sometimes due to mother dependence. The unbalanced person is always at some risk of becoming delinquent. Such a person has a mental life that is not well harmonized. The man who has special abilities along one of two lines and is weak in other directions is really in greater danger of becoming delinquent than a person in whom all the instincts and impulses and capacities are equally well developed. It is often very difficult for the unbalanced person to level up the weak quality to the standard of the more highly developed one, and unless that is done the want of balance and harmony in his mental life exposes him to danger.

It has been found that the mother-dependent child grown into an adult delinquent, is often anything but weak in his general characteristics. The top-sideways person in his traits tends to strength in some and weakness in others. It is through the exercise of the weak traits, often made weak by early mother-dependence, that he becomes a criminal. Such individuals rarely, if ever, are physically weak. The ingenuity they exercise and the exploits of which they are capable sometimes seem to suggest the very opposite of weakness. In many master criminals, however, there is an element of weakness, mental and moral more often than physical, all the time.

One of the outstanding things about a habitual criminal is that it is difficult if not impossible for him to do regular continuous work to escape which, in early life, he appealed for and received maternal indulgence. He now can work out a plan of robbery, work hard at the details, and put all his ability and ingenuity and energy into it for a certain length of time, but he is incapable of going on. If you put him to regular work he will work well for a few days and then get tired and go away from it. A man like this wants training in concentration and wants his capacity for continuous work developed. He has also the weakness to some extent of being unduly fond of pleasure, the means of which he wants to get without doing adequate service in order to spend him to them—just as, in early life, he sought and gained his pleasure simply by asking his mother for it. He simply can't give up the habit of having his pleasure without doing anything to deserve it.

It can thus be seen that the thoughtful and really affectionate mother will see to it that her child does not develop a lopsided character by coming to depend upon her for everything.

GATEWAYS.

SOMETIMES I find new tasks await
My slender strength, and yet, elate,
I welcome one and all;
For I have learned each deed I do,
Each friend I make will let me through
New gateways, great or small.

No longer now do I deplore
The hardships which I feared before,
For since I see aright
Life's every contact has revealed
An entrance to some sun-bright field,
Some vista of delight.

I trace new gateways and I go Into strange realms I could not know
Before this toll was met:
With joy I greet each trust, each need
And in it see a gate to lead
To gardens fairer yet.

Here's a recipe for coolness: At breakfast, take a bowl and fill it full of crisp Kellogg's Corn Flakes. ★ Pour in cool milk and add some fruit for extra flavor. Next a spoon—then, just enjoy yourself! Repeat at lunch, if you like (and of course you surely will).

Kellogg's CORN FLAKES

★ Kellogg's are the original! The world's most popular corn flakes! No imitations have ever equaled their wonderful flavor and crispness.

Serve Kellogg's for lunch and dinner as well as breakfast. For the kiddies' supper. Never tough—thick—but extra crisp. Always easy to digest. Delicious with milk or cream—with fruits or honey added.

Order at hotels, restaurants, cafeterias. On dining-cars. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Always over-fresh! Look for the famous red-and-green package!

Give her 12 months of sunshine

The child who eats plenty of good butter the year 'round is actually enjoying 12 months of sunshine, because good butter has the same healthful effect as the beneficial rays of sunshine itself.

Sunshine is transformed into life-giving vitamins and carried into the blood stream. In good butter the two vitamins A and D, most important to child growth and health, also abound. So the child who gets plenty of inside sunshine—edible sunshine—in the form of good butter, is well equipped for growth, weight, health, success.

Blue Valley Butter is good butter. Every lot of fine cream is individually selected and tested. Thorough pasteurization follows. Every advanced method in good butter making is utilized to protect the valuable vitamins A and D.

That means superb flavor, too—the distinctive Blue Valley flavor—a flavor so precious that every package of Blue Valley is triple-wrapped. Never sold in bulk. Three convenient weights.

Get Blue Valley today. Every grocer who sells it is a purveyor of health. Put sunshine and vitamins also into other foods by cooking with Blue Valley. Adds to flavor also.

Prevention Best In War on Moth

NOW is the time to prepare your defense against the ravages of moths. Since we know that nothing is more offensive to the home-seeking moth than cleanliness, it is easy to discourage him from parking in our wardrobes. Careful cleansing of all washable fabrics with soap and water is most essential. Such articles as cannot be washed should be cleaned and aired in the sunshine. Both the moths and their larvae prefer dark corners, so pleats, seams, folds and pockets should be given extra attention.

According to the United States Department of Agriculture Bulletin on "Clothes Moths and Their Control," naphthalene, paradichlorobenzene or camphor preparations will help to protect your clothing if placed in tightly sealed chests, boxes or packages where the fumes cannot escape. These substances cannot be relied on if merely scattered about closet shelves or bureau drawers.

As a final precaution, scrub the entire closet with strong soapuds in order to destroy any larvae that might be lurking in out-of-the-way corners.

As soon as there is a cut in the skin of any member of the family, just for safety's sake, paint it with kerosene.

Family of Eleven Is Well Educated

THE McGills of Arkansas claim a world's record in education. In a family of eleven, sons and daughters of M. W. McGill of Camden, all are graduates of advanced schools, and ten of the children have university degrees. The only one who is not a full university graduate, C. W. McGill, was graduated from the Jagaman Watchmaking school of St. Louis in 1908.

Dr. A. G. McGill, an X-ray specialist, was graduated from Tulane University in 1906 and from Vanderbilt in 1916.

The eight other members of the family attended the University of Arkansas.

MAKING UP THE BLONDES.

WILL o' the wisp blondes . . . buxom blondes . . . the heroic type of blonde . . . blondes of Venetian persuasion . . . Titian blondes. It is a wise blonde indeed who knows her "type" and who knows just how far to go in the matter of exterior decoration.

The brunette who makes the mistake of adding one or two layers of rouge too many may "get by" as a high blood pressure case (the tradition being that all brunettes are warm-blooded). But the blonde who touches up the lily overmuch is likely to be condemned "coarse" (the tradition being that blondes are all more or less "cold," naturally).

The fact of the matter is, however, that any woman, regardless of her natural coloring, coarsens and cheapens herself when she fails to exercise restraint in the use of rouge and lipstick. And at the risk of being accused of nagging we repeat it here, for perhaps the third time, because in spite of all that has been said and written on the subject of art in make-up, the highways and byways of life stream with women who appear to have no notion that this sort of thing can be an art.

The preachment over, we will back to the blondes and their cosmetic problems. By the will o' the wisp blonde, we mean, of course, the girl with pale gold hair and pale, almost colorless skin, with eyes of a faint, early morning sky blue. For her were designed the gentle "pink" rouges, creamy-white powder and light coral lipstick. The Dresden china ideal of delicacy, a thing "tres, tres femme," should guide her in making up.

Vividness is more the right of her buxom sister, who gives first an impression of rich, ripe health. Powder with a hint of peach color is excellent on this type of blonde and on the Norse-goddess or heroic "variety," too. If there is natural pink to the cheeks, let it be gently heightened or severely let alone, all depending upon the depth and degree of the color. Usually the gay, bright red tones of rouge and lipstick are the best choice here, but to be most effective they must be applied with discretion. The veriest dash of these brilliant reds goes a long, long way—especially before nightfall!

There's a hint of gold in the Venetian blonde skin, which simply must be "played up" with light ochre powder or ochre with a touch of flesh in its blend. And with this goes wonderfully well a rich, deep "glow" of rouge with matching lipstick, and for evening a touch of brown eyeshadow.

If you have red mixed with the gold of your hair, and a creamy pallor, you belong to the Titian blondes. And if you are interesting in "driving men mad," as did the vamps in the movies of yesteryear, you will go in for scarlet lips and ivory cheeks and, never, never think of using rouge.

Soroptimists Plan First Turkish Club

PLANS are underway for the creation of the first business and professional women's club in Turkey now that Madame Hussein Bey has received an invitation from the Soroptimists of America to establish a branch of that organization in the City of the Golden Horn.

Madame Hussein Bey was one of the first Turkish women to nurse soldiers during the Balkan war. She received a medal for her services from the British Red Cross and afterwards worked with the German Red Cross at the Dardanelles during the World War. She now is active in three Turkish societies: the Red Crescent, which corresponds to the Red Cross of Christian countries; the Green Crescent, an anti-alcoholic society, as a representative of which she visited the United States last year, and the Society for the Protection of Children. She also is a director of Turkey's first school of nursing.

The Soroptimist Club which she is planning to establish will not lack for members, as there are now in Constantinople many Turkish women doctors, dentists, teachers, lawyers, chemists, stenographers, government clerks, painters, sculptors, authors, journalists and business women.

J. J. RASKOB APPOINTED DEMOCRATIC CHAIRMAN

Gov. Smith's Choice, Head of General Motors Finance Committee, Approved by Leaders.

MRS. ROSS ONE OF FIVE VICE CHAIRMEN

H. H. Lehman, New York
Banker, Is Appointed Head of Finance Committee to Succeed Jones.

NEW YORK, July 11.—John J. Raskob, chairman of the Finance Committee of General Motors, today was named chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Raskob was nominated by Joseph P. Kamp of Delaware and the nomination was seconded by Norman MacK of New York.

Immediately after his appointment, Raskob issued a statement in which he said that he was not a politician and had never been affiliated with any political party.

"I should like to pledge every dollar and worker for our cause," the statement read, "to constructive policies. Mud-slinging, so-called, always makes more enemies than friends. In our business life today we succeed by constructive work and by having better goods to sell than our competitors."

"There is every reason why the Democratic party should follow this constructive business policy in this campaign. The country is in need of leadership—real and fearless."

"And if we impart to the people of other states the knowledge that the people of the state of New York have of Alfred Smith and the people of Arkansas have of Joseph Robinson, then their election in November will be assured."

No Sidestepping of Dry Issue. Raskob served notice that there would be no sidestepping of the prohibition issue.

"Gov. Smith, as President of the United States, with all the resources then at his command, will be able to give the people of the United States a picture of the real conditions under the present so-called prohibition law," he said.

"If, as a result of careful study, he can evolve a plan for the regulation and control of the liquor question in a way that will absolutely prevent a return of the ration, eliminate bootlegging, with its accompanying evils—graft, corruption and murder—and restore temperate life in our country, then all fair-minded men must admit his right, if not his duty, as President, to promulgate such plans and to advocate such changes in our laws and Constitution as may be necessary for its adoption."

The committee re-elected James W. Gerard of New York, former Ambassador to Germany, as treasurer, and Charles A. Greathouse of Indiana as secretary.
